ESTABLISHED 1846. NEWPORT, R. I., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1913—TEN PAGES. PRICE TWO CENTS.

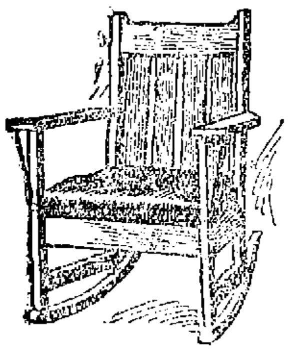

Genuine Spanish Leather Loose Cushion Seat.

One much overlooked yet pre-possessing feature of the Mission style in furniture is its adaptability to the furnishings of any room in the house—an odd piece of this "Period" idea never looks out of place. Put it anywhere and you are certain of its effectiveness as a part of the entire interior decorative scheme.

As illustrating this idea we offer the Arm Rocker shown in the picture whose solidity is attested by its 2 inch posts. It is sturdily built in every little detail and comes only

In Weathered Oak

As befits the pure Mission Type. Note its splendid roominess, the broad arm rests and the comfort assured by the wide "slatted" back. You would hardly look for a genuine Spanish leather covering to the loose cushion seat in this chair for the moderate Titus price of $9.00, yet that is exactly what you get—genuine Spanish Leather which will almost outwear the Chair itself.

JEROME ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF GAMBLING.

Played in a Penny-Ante Game With Others in Public.

Decision Regarding Thaw to Come Today, But Sanity Not Considered.

COATICOOK, Sept. 5.—William Travers Jerome was arrested here today, charged with gambling. The complaint was made by Milford Aldrich, a citizen of Coaticook, who swore that he had seen Jerome playing poker in public yesterday. Jerome was taken to jail, where Thaw was confined when brought here two weeks ago.

Thaw's lawyers disclaimed any knowledge of the arrest. The belief prevailed that it was due solely to ill feeling among the townspeople, who resented Jerome's presence.

Mr. Jerome was taken into custody at the Coaticook Hotel, by Policeman John Andrews. He was so surprised that he could hardly speak. As a matter of fact, he had indulged in a penny-ante game with some newspaper men. They used a suit case for a table and sat in an automobile, waiting for the Thaw hearing to eventuate.

News of the arrest of Jerome swept through the town like wild fire. The Thaw hearing had in the meantime been adjourned. A. C. Hanson crown prosecutor for St. Francis county issued the warrant. Jerome will have a hearing before a magistrate within 24 hours.

Jerome was locked in a small cell and no one was allowed to see him. At 11 o'clock he had not retained counsel. The complainant Aldrich, is a mill hand.

Jerome was admitted to $500 bail shortly before 12 o'clock. He left the jail smiling.

A pro-Thaw outbreak followed Jerome's arrest. Crowds gathered about the jail shouting "Hooray for Thaw." Now we'll deport Jerome."

The charge is "common gambling on railroad property." The maximum penalty, according to the crown prosecutor, is one year's imprisonment, with no option of a fine.

Though Jerome can be brought up before a magistrate within 48 hours, it is possible that he may be held in jail until the forty-seventh hour before being arraigned, according to the prosecutor. Then he will be remanded to jail in Sherbrooke, to await the action of the grand jury of the Kings' [illegible] in October. However, as soon as he is remanded he can apply to the superior court for bail.

The warrant on which Jerome was arrested was sworn out before James McKee, magistrate.

The special board of inquiry, seeking to determine whether Thaw shall be sent across the border, adjourned with the announcement that at 1 p. m. it would render its decision, but the question of Thaw's sanity has not been officially considered. Convicted merely of entering the Dominion by stealth, Thaw would have the right of appeal to the minister of the interior. This would insure his remaining here 48 hours more. He also might be deported as an undesirable and necessary insane. This also could be appealed. The insanity phase was dropped, it was understood, to obviate the necessity of a long drawn-out examination by alienists.

The witnesses examined in the forenoon were Thaw himself and Franklin Kennedy, deputy attorney general of New York. Thaw was on the stand less than two minutes. He was asked one question: "Are you the man who killed Stanford White?" "On the advice of counsel, I decline to answer," said Thaw. He was then excused.

Mr. Kennedy identified the commitment on which Thaw was first sent to Matteawan and the decree remanding him there after his defeat in various habeas corpus proceedings. The board adjourned at 1 o'clock.

The arrest of Jerome grew out of his informal card games played with reporters yesterday near the Grand Trunk Railway station, where Thaw is held in the immigration pen. Milford Aldrich, the complainant, said he had acted merely as a public-spirited citizen. He complained to A. C. Hanson, crown prosecutor, that he had seen Jerome playing cards and this morning Justice of the Peace James McKee signed the warrant.

Jerome had just slipped from the telephone booth of his hotel when Policeman Andrews, somewhat diffident

BANJO TYPE SIGNALS PASSED DURING A FOG.

Proof Demanded Regarding Betterment of Old Conditions.

Testimony Given at Interstate Board's Inquiry Into New Haven Wreck.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 5.—Engineers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad frequently pass danger signals of the "Banjo" type in foggy weather without stopping, according to sworn testimony of witnesses at the Interstate Commerce Commission's investigation into the North Haven wreck of Tuesday morning, today.

It was further testified that the White Mountain express, the train which plunged into the Bar Harbor express, and followed it from Springfield Mass., on the morning of the wreck, eight minutes behind, was saved from colliding with the Bar Harbor just after it left Springfield on the fatal run. This was at Wilsons, betwen Springfield and Hartford, and according to the testimony of the engineer the White Mountain, flagged by C. H. Murray of the Bar Harbor train at that point, drew up to the latter train before it was again started on its journey.

Murray, the flagman, denied on the stand that he had at any time seen the White Mountain train until it had whizzed by his torpedo, and a moment before the wreck at North Haven.

The two trains involved were the last of a procession of six which that morning passed Wallingford three miles north of the wreck, within a period of 32 minutes. An order to stop the White Mountain at Wallingford, which would have prevented the wreck, was rescinded, it was brought out.

General Manager Bardo was ordered by Commissioner McChord to produce minutes of all meetings of the directors or executive committee of the New Haven which would show that action had been taken since the Bridgeport wreck of July 12, 1911, toward bettering safety conditions.

Flagman Murray testified that he had gone back to place danger signals to protect his train, "as far as I could until I was recalled by my engineer's whistle."

Murray, who was locked up last night, was formally released today, bonds being given by Samuel Heminway, a banker and brother of James S. Heminway, a director of the company. Engineer Miller has previously been furnished bonds by his brotherhood.

CORONER MIX'S OPINION.

Wholesale Robberies from Dead Bodies at North Haven Wreck.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 5.—That there were wholesale and disgraceful robberies from dead bodies at the railroad wreck at North Haven Tuesday morning, it the opinion of Coroner Mix, who today reported the facts to Chief of Police Smith and requested him to apprehend the culprits.

WANTED IN MONTREAL.

Production of Thaw Called in Writ of Habeas Corpus.

MONTREAL, Sept. 5.—Judge Gervais today issued a writ of habeas corpus calling for the production of Harry K. Thaw in Montreal at once.

This statement was made this afternoon by the Montreal Herald, which says it has learned on good authority that the writ was procured on Thaw's behalf by two members of his legal staff, J. N. Greenshields and N. K. La Flamme. The ground taken, it is said, is that Thaw is not an immigrant in the true sense of the word. The statement of the Herald lacks official confirmation.

Should the writ be sustained Thaw will be brought to Montreal, where his case would be heard before the court of appeals. A special train it is said was held in readiness this afternoon to take Thaw's Montreal lawyers to Coaticook to serve the writ upon Thaw's custodians there.

Judge Gervais is on the court of King's bench.

WATCHMAN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL EXHIBIT.

In connection with the tag day Saturday, for the benefit of the Watchman Industrial School of Providence, there is a display of the work done at that school in the vacant store at 19 Franklin street. There are large and small baskets of rattan principally, although there are a few of raffia. There are also hammocks and fancy articles, all made by hand.

A meeting was held in Caminchet Hall Thursday evening at which the work of the school was explained and assistance was urged for its support. Rev. E. B. Holland, the principal, and three of the teachers gave talks, and Rev. Henry N. Jeter, D. D., William H. Mathews and Mrs. Jeter also spoke.

THE STEVENS-COOK ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. M. Cook of Port Chester, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emma Cook, to Mr. Charles Henry Stevens of this city. Mr. Stevens, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Stevens, is a graduate of the Rogers High School, having been a prominent member of the football team for several years, and a recent graduate of the University of Maryland. He was also prominent in athletic sports at that institution, being a member of the football and base ball teams, captain of last year's football team, and member of the athletic advisory council, and was also prominent in various other university activities. Mr. Stevens married in January, 1908, Miss Myrtle E. Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac L. Sherman of Middletown, who died in September of the next year.

NEW YORK SUBWAY TRAFFIC CONGESTED.

Torrential Rain Pours Into Tube, Flooding Tracks.

Thousands of Basement Dwellers Driven from Their Homes.

NEW YORK, September 5.—Not a wheel moved in the New York subway between Ninety-sixth street in upper Manhattan and the Brooklyn terminal during the rush hour of the work-bound crowds this morning, resulting in one of the worst traffic congestions the city has known.

The rain, which lasted three hours, turned streets into rivers, some of them two to four feet deep, and the water poured in great quantities into the thousands of cellars, driving basement dwellers from their homes.

The roofs of two large Broadway hotels sprang aleak, and torrents of water which had been held back by choked leaders went down through bedrooms and halls, driving guests from their rooms and doing serious damage to decorations and tapestries.

Elevators were put out of commission in several hotels and guests had to climb many flights of stairs. At two large Broadway houses guests were obliged to go to bed by candle light.

Surface cars were out of commission all over the city for a time by the torrents of water which poured into the underground trolley conduit, causing short circuit.

It was nearly nine o'clock before the line was cleared and then the congestion prevented any thing like normal conditions. The first downtown train since 1:30 a. m. left the Ninety-sixth Street station at 8 o'clock. The Interborough Company loaded flat cars with electric pumps capable of discharging 750 gallons a minute and sucked the water out of the tube.

The block at the Brooklyn terminal of the subway was the worst in the system. One hundred thousand persons use this station between 7 and 8 o'clock in the morning. When the men, women and children, all anxious not to be late in reaching their work in Manhattan, found that no trains were running they made for the elevated and surface cars that cross the bridge or take passengers to the ferries.

One man hemmed in by the crowd told those around him that he was recently released from Sing Sing, that this was his first day on an honest job and that he probably would lose both the job and his chances of reformation if he failed to report on time for work this morning.

At several central stations the baffled subway users stormed the elevated trains in such numbers that police reserves were called out to keep order. Extra cars were put on all the trolley lines. Even the ancient horse cars which survive on a few short and little used lines were not scorned.

Fifty fire chiefs here attending their international convention were in an express train stalled at the Columbus Circle station of the subway early today. They all turned in and helped the subway guards escort passengers over the third rail and up to the station platform.

LAST REGULAR BAND CONCERT.

The Seventh Artillery band gave the last of the regular concerts of the season on Touro park Thursday evening. There was a large crowd in attendance, in spite of the threatening weather, and the various numbers were heartily applauded. The most pleasing were the overtures, "Maximillian Robespierre" by Litoff and "Lucia di Lammermoor" by Donzetti; the descriptive piece, "A Hunting Scene", and the medley, "Song Land". The suite of airs arranged by Bandmaster Freeman, "El Chiquito Mamma" and "La Chiquata Papa," with tambourine and castanets, and the Dvorak "Humoresque" was given with special charm. The Comic, Tattoo, in which the various musicians one by one desert the band stand, leaving only the snare and bass drummers to finish the selection made quite a hit. The program concluded quite appropriately with Von Tilzer's medley, "Good Bye, Boys".

Sudden Death of John Levi Tallman, For Many Years Member of Town Council.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Mr. John Levi Tallman of Sprague street died very suddenly late Wednesday evening, from a stroke of apoplexy. He had been in poor health for some months from stomach trouble, but was not perceptibly worse until last Sunday, when he took to bed.

He was the youngest of the five children of the late Levi and Amy Child Tallman, of whom only two are now living, (Almira) Mrs. John Wesley Tallman and (Josephine) Mrs. Edward P. Brown of Glen street. The others were Sophronia, wife of William H. Arnold of Newport, and George Carpenter Tallman of Westport. He married Mary, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cory, who survives him. There are no children. Mr. Tallman was in his fifty-seventh year and had been one of the most liked men in the community from a boy. He had been a member of the town council for 11 years, when four years ago he resigned to "give some one else a chance."

Mr. James Dunn, son of Mr. William J. Dunn, who was a successful actor in "Joan of Arc" a week ago, met with a serious accident at his home on Sprague street this week, where he is spending a part of his vacation, by being kicked in the head by a horse, the wound requiring four stitches. It will delay his return to Fordham College.

Mr. Thomas Barton, who has been seriously ill, is rapidly recovering.

The Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church met Thursday, with a good attendance. Supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Pelletier gave a turkey dinner, in view of their departure for Lowell, there being 20 present from Fall River, Lowell and Nation.

Mrs. George A. Wyatt has returned from a visit to relatives in Maine, where she went several weeks ago with her son, Mr. Berkeley Wyatt, who returned earlier.

During August books were loaned from the Free Library as follows: history 5, geography and travel 22, science and art 25, poetry and drama 16, literature and language 3, miscellaneous 8, fiction 403, total 489.

Mr. Bert Horsman has returned home from a trip to Niagara Falls, Detroit and Canada.

Mrs. Jonathan T. Brownell has returned from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Deforest Macomber, in Newport.

Mr. Fenner Allen has secured a position at the Torpedo Station Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pierce have returned from Jackson, N. H., where they spent a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. McCoy have returned from an automobile trip to Camp Opechee.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church met this week with Mr. and Mrs. William B. Spooner. The principal business was in regard to the lunch table which the Ladies' Benevolent Society of the church is to furnish at the fair and it was voted to assist them. Committees were appointed for this purpose. Musical selections were given and light refreshments served.

The Portsmouth Sunshine Society held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Morton W. Storrs this week. Light refreshments were served.

Miss Helen Ayler of the Central Telephone Exchange is entertaining Miss Evelyn C. Benzard of Providence.

The celebrant of the high mass at the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Cory was Father Rooney, the deacon her nephew, Hugh McKenna of Providence, and the sub-deacon Father Barnes. Her age was 63, instead of 70, as given.

Mrs. Eunice A. Greene has gone to North Attleboro, where she will be guest of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Allen, and Rev. Mr. Allen.

Miss Edna M. Brophy, who has been spending the summer in Westport with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Brophy, returned Monday and resumed her duties as teacher at the Chase school.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Macomber have as guest Miss Mary Spencer of Bristol.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Lowe of Providence and Mr. Robert Roland of Brooklyn are spending a few days in town.

Miss Abbie E. Usher of Bristol is guest of Mrs. H. David.

Miss Mary Duffy and Miss Mary [illegible] have gone to Newport to spend [illegible] weeks.

Miss Mary E. Corey of Providence, who is spending some weeks in Portsmouth, was guest Thursday of her cousin, Mrs. Sarah L. Wilcox, and family in Newport.

RESIGNATIONS HELD UP.

Secretary Daniels Refuses to Allow Naval Officers to Withdraw from Service.

Secretary Daniels persists in his refusal to permit naval officers to resign or to go on the retired list on their own application, except for the gravest reasons of bad health.

Among those whose resignations are held up are Lieutenant J. O. Fisher, on duty as engineer officer of the North Dakota; Lieutenant W. W. Smith, attached to the California, and Lieutenant E. E. Spafford, on duty at the Washington navy yard. Lieutenant Fisher submitted his resignation some weeks ago, with the idea of taking a place in one of the prominent steel firms. Lieutenant Smith has an opportunity to ally himself with the Westinghouse Company, and Lieutenant Spafford has received an offer from one of the leading trust companies. These officers have been informed that the Navy Department does not favor resignations of officers to enter civilian pursuits, with the result that there may be an appeal to the courts.

Mr. Daniels takes the ground that an officer who is educated for the navy at government expense has no right to expect the acceptance of his resignation, especially when the incident is entirely to his own advantage. Naval officers assert that they have a right to resign after they have fulfilled their obligation to serve a certain number of years after graduation from the Naval Academy. They insist that the departmental refusal to act on a resignation amounts to compulsory service, and there will be opposition to any such condition.

The result of the Secretary's attitude has been to cause much discontent and to invite criticism by numerous officers. Those who wish to resign feel that they are not fairly treated, and those who would gain by the vacancies caused by resignations naturally entertain a grievance.

It is asserted that it is of advantage to the service to have naval officers go with big manufacturing concerns, in that it provides opportunity to establish relations between the Navy Department and the companies calculated to be of mutual benefit. The big companies are more liberal than the government can be—or than it is—in the matter of experiments and in the development of new ideas and projects of various kinds. It is also pointed out that an officer who is compelled to serve in the navy against his wishes cannot be of the same value to the service as one who wishes to continue his naval career.

Some of the officers purpose to fight for their rights, as they regard them, and interesting developments may result, as Mr. Daniels is determined that the resignations shall not be accepted.

LOSS MAY REACH $50,000.

Bulfinch Place Unitarian Church, Boston, Gutted by Fire.

BOSTON, September 5.—The Bulfinch Place Unitarian Church, one of the oldest church edifices in the city, was gutted by fire early today, causing a loss estimated at $50,000. The blaze looked so serious for a time that guests routed from their beds in the near-by West End hotels and lodging houses by the smoke were thrown into a panic. It is believed that the fire started in the basement. Apparently it had been burning for some time before it was discovered, for the whole interior was ablaze when the firemen who responded to the first of the three alarms reached the scene.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Amateur Wireless Craze Assuming the Proportions of an Epidemic.

Many Industries—Society Turns to Imitation Jewels—The "Little Church Around the Corner."

[Correspondence of The News.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—A recent investigation has brought to light the fact that New York city harbors a larger number of wireless eavesdroppers than any other place in the world. Five thousand are in operation, and the craze is so epidemic that the increase averages half a dozen every night. On the roofs of houses, hotels, garages and stores everywhere rise the primitive aerials. Down below in his little room sits the amateur with his ear phone clamped to his head drinking in the news conveyed surely and swiftly through the wireless signals. These wireless outfits cost on the average about $50, but for even less these wireless eavesdroppers can pluck from the skies secrets of state, finance and commerce and often fervent messages of love and affection.

The amateur wireless craze is distributed over all sorts and conditions of people. The humblest as well as the wealthiest class are keenly interested. University men, mechanics, clerks, doctors, lawyers and clergymen are experimenting. In Harlem a wireless lovers' club is reported. Half a dozen couples have installed wireless apparatus, and the Harlem atmosphere is surcharged with wages of devotion and affection half an hour after parting time every night. Stories are told of a number of wave tangles that mixed up sweethearts, who were mixed up wrong for the interchange of mutual confidences.

Laws have been passed which were intended to curb the activities of these amateur wireless enthusiasts, but in spite of them the student and experiment recontinues to "butt in." Records show that he increases and multiplies between every rising and setting of the sun and his interloping keeps pace with the increase. Amateur wireless operators put up a strong defense against the accusation of being eavesdroppers. They claim that they have frequently been the first to hear signals of distress from ships. They also assert that by their experiments many devices have been added to wireless patents.

New York's position as the world's largest producer of manufactures is pretty generally eclipsed by the importance popularly attached to Wall Street and the Stock Exchange, to the "Great White Way" and its attractions to Tammany Hall and to such other features which, though distinguishing, may be classed as incidental to the city's real growth and greatness. It may be hard to realize, but is none the less true, that there are in operation within the city's limits as many as 30,000 factories, employing—in round figures—[illegible] operatives and 110,000 office workers on pay rolls aggregating over $750,000,000 per annum.

These factories annually produce goods to the value of over $2,600,000,000, of which approximately $1,400,000,000 is paid for materials, leaving about $1,200,000,000 as the value added by manufacture or the wealth actually produced by 760,000 workers. In other words, New York city makes more merchandise than does any state in the Union; in fact, its total production is at least five sixths as large as the aggregate of the six New England states, which section is popularly supposed to lead all others in manufactures.

Says a New England manufacturer, who is moving his large works to New York: "I thought such a large business as mine would attract some attention, but I find that it is so small compared with the manufacturing done in New York city that it will not attract the least bit of notice; it will be only a very small drop in a very large bucket."

The largest industry in New York is the manufacture of clothing, in which alone are engaged more than [illegible] factories and approximately [illegible] wage earners; the total value of products amount to $650,000,000, of which $350,000,000 covers feminine apparel, leaving only $300,000,000 for mere man.

The recent thefts from prominent New Yorkers, summering at fashionable resorts, of more than $200,000 worth of jewels has brought to light the fact that many of the famous necklaces and tiaras are most infrequently worn, their places being taken by duplicates made of imitation stones. The apparent ease with which these treasures are stolen, in many cases never to be recovered, warrants wonder that the practice of wearing duplicates instead of the originals is not more prevalent, especially at summering places where the owners are [illegible] more carefree and frolicsome and not so well provided with safes and strong boxes as at home. Concerns so engaged are now duplicating precious stones so faithfully that only experts can distinguish between the real and the sham, and often the copies are said to outshine the originals. As a matter of fact, many women of large wealth, who own famous jewels, make no secret of the fact that their most prized gems are seldom taken from the safe deposit vaults, though nevertheless they are on occasions large and small admired by proxy, as it were; and not infrequently the imitation itself cost a small fortune.

[illegible] these United States are about to enjoy for the first time in all their history the honor of a visit from a real reigning European sovereign is [illegible] (or threatened) by the projected landing here in the near future of Albert I, sovereign prince of Monaco and over-lord of the world-famed and world-fed gambling resort,—Monte Carlo. Hitherto we have had to content ourselves, so far as ruling [illegible] is concerned, with the privilege of welcoming the late Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil in 1876, and [illegible] years later Kalakaua, the dusky [illegible] of the Sandwich Islands. It [illegible] during the life and reign of Queen [illegible] that King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, made his memorable visit.

Another report, most interesting in [illegible] connection, is that King George and Queen Mary are contemplating a visit to Washington and New York before returning home from their tour [illegible] next year. Already in [illegible] and social circles discussion [illegible] as to the honors due these [illegible] guests-to-be and the [illegible] that will befit the occasion, [illegible] being no precedent whatever [illegible]. It is safe to assume, [illegible] that his exalted rank will [illegible] Albert I of Monaco against too [illegible] examination by the immigration authorities as to his gambling connections, and the summary deportation that might otherwise befall him.

Few churches are so widely known by name as New York's "Little Church Around the Corner", yet possibly not one in 10,000 of those familiar with the name have seen it or would recognize as the same the now spacious and beautiful Church of the Transfiguration, in East Twenty-ninth street. The origin of its odd name is recalled to old-timers among actor-folk by the death recently of Bishop William Tubnell Sabine, late of the Reformed Episcopal Church, but in those days rector of the fashionable Church of the Atonement at Madison avenue and Twenty-eighth street.

In September, 1870, George Holland, a well known actor of his time, died here and the late Joseph Jefferson, in behalf of the son, E. M. Holland, called upon Dr. Sabine to conduct the funeral services. The doctor declined because of Mr Holland's profession and suggested that Mr. Jefferson try a little church around the corner. "Thank God," replied Jefferson, "for 'The Little Church Around the Corner'." Dr. George Hendric Houghton, who had founded the church, welcomed Mr Jefferson and the funeral services were held there. The story spread among theatrical circles and the fame of the "Little Church Around the Corner" became worldwide. It has been the church of theatrical folk who have been married there, had their children christened there, and been buried from there.

Green Corn Chowder.

Green corn chowder calls for a quarter of a pound of chopped fat ham or salt pork. With it are slowly cooked two chopped onions. When beginning to change color add one quart of scraped or cut raw corn, one pint of diced raw potatoes, salt and pepper and a half pint of boiling water. Simmer slowly for 20 minutes, then add one pint of hot milk and a slight thickening of one tablespoonful each of flour and butter. When taken from the fire add a bowl of broken crackers.

Peach Bavarian Cream.

A peach Bavarian cream will need a pint of pulp, one-half package of granulated gelatine, soaked in a half cupful of cold water and dissolved over hot water, one-third cupful of powdered sugar, four drops of almond extract, a slight tinging of fruit red color paste. When this mixture begins to thicken, as it chills, stir in gently one pint of heavy cream whipped to a solid froth and turn into molds.

Yorkshire Pudding.

Yorkshire pudding will need three eggs, a half-teaspoonful of salt and six tablespoonfuls flour. Beat well, then reduce with sweet milk until a thin pour batter. Forty minutes before the roast is done pour off almost all the fat in the pan, add the strained batter (pouring it either round or under the meat according to the rack used) and return to the oven. Baste several times with a little of the hot dripping. When done, carefully cut the pudding in squares and serve as a garnish round the meat.

Frozen Peaches.

To freeze take one pint of prepared peach pulp and stir into it four drops of almond extract and a chilled syrup made by boiling together for five minutes one pint of sugar and one pint of water. To give it a pretty tint use a very little fruit red color paste.

A Girl's Serge Coat.

This young girl wears, over a frock of fine machine embroidery, a coat of striped serge in black and white, with touches of cerise in collar facing and buttonhole motifs. Her hat is of black milan straw trimmed with pleated black grosgrain ribbon and silk [illegible] in cerise and pale yellow. Black silk stockings are worn with buttoned boots of dull calf with cloth tops.

RETROSPECT.

[Washington Star.]

Oh, where are the lads that I knew
in my youth,
Whose clever attainments I loved to admire?
They took all the prizes and left me,
in truth,
All hopeless of gifts to which they might aspire.
A number gained honors both lofty and sure;
But others who seemed with fair
fortune to sail
Have drifted at last into ways insecure
And will do very well if they keep out of jail.

The boy who would take all our marbles away
And who knew all the sums in the old 'rithmetic
Came up into public attention one day
As the man who made millions, but made them too quick.
The youth who would boldly stand up and declaim—
We hope that our efforts to save him won't fail.
The grafters mussed up his political
And we're not at all sure that he won't go to jail!

AS TO STEEL CARS.

[Boston Transcript.]

There is a good deal of hysteria shown about the lack of steel cars. There are more steel cars on the New Haven line than ever before, and there have been more accidents. The principal advantage is that in case of wreck they very appreciably reduce the danger from fire. On the whole it is the consensus of opinion that steel cars are safer and better, and present construction is generally proceeding upon that basis. The Pullman company replies to interrogatories on that point that it has not built a wooden car in the past three years. The principal roads are substituting steel as fast as their resources will permit, but with all the other burdens and demands upon them they can hardly be expected to dump in the scrap heap cars that are entirely serviceable in other respects.

OCCIDENT FLOUR.

Occident Flour costs a little more than other flours. It is made for those people who care enough about bread to notice the difference in different kinds.

The price of Occident Flour is at all times sufficiently high to permit—

—The exclusive use of the choicest selected Northern spring wheat.

—The maintenance of the finest, cleanest, most sanitary and most modern mills in the world.

—The employment of the most extensive purifying processes ever used in flour milling, including the thorough washing of every kernel of wheat before grinding.

—The employment of the most skillful and painstaking millers to maintain the many complicated processes at highest efficiency.

THE OCCIDENT GUARANTEE.

We guarantee the quality not only good, but enough better than other flours to be immediately noticeable—that you can make bread from it, that in purity, whiteness, rich flavor, fine even texture and general goodness is better than the bread you can make from any other flour.

RAILROAD CASUALTIES.

When 14 bad accidents occur on the lines of a single railway company in two years and three months the presumption is that there is some removable cause. It does not seem possible that such a number could be a mere coincidence.

Previous accidents have been investigated and reports made, but they do not wholly clear up this matter. Steel cars would not reduce the number of accidents; they would only reduce the number of casualties. We should prevent collisions. Some different system of signals might reduce the number of accidents; but if a signal is invisible in a fog, would any other kind be certainly seen? A thick fog will shut out anything at a distance of a few yards in the day-time, and at night it is notorious that lights can be seen through a fog only a very little way.

It is for this reason that there are fog horns and bell buoys along the coast. Is this suggestion practicable along the railroads? Evidently what is needed is a signal which an engineman cannot run past without knowing it. There have been many complaints by enginemen that they could not see the signals. Cannot signals be devised which the enginemen will hear, if they cannot see them?

There are railroad companies which have carried millions of passengers for several years without taking the life of one. Is it chance? Is it better discipline of the employes? Is it a fact that on some roads the enginemen are obliged to take big risks in order to make up lost time, while on others the enginemen know that the one rule they cannot afford to violate is the rule to obey every signal and every cautionary rule?

This is one of the points most in need of investigation. Why are accidents a good deal more common on some lines than on others? In the conduct of the investigation the public has a right to know what the evidence is. It is a bad policy to have an investigation in secret. It is not usual for coroners to have their inquests in secret, or for public utilities commissions to investigate behind closed doors. Why should they make an exception?

IS IT ANOTHER FALSE ALARM?

The announcement that the United States government has instituted suit for the dissolution of the anthracite combination, or at least so much of it as bears the Reading name, will not throw the public into any state of excitement. It will rather lead to inquiry if this is another false alarm.

Without undertaking to try the case in the newspapers, it may be said without impropriety that what is popularly known as the anthracite trust looks to the independent producers and to consumers as much like a monopoly as any combination which the government has prosecuted. Not even the oil and tobacco trusts have been so nearly a complete monopoly in their lines as the railroads which own the greater part of the anthracite region, supply all the transportation for anthracite, and fix the price with no competition except the very small amount supplied by such other fuels as bituminous coal, oil and gas. The feeling of the public toward it was not improved when it took the occasion of a concession of a wage advance to the miners to raise the selling price about three times as much as the increased wages needed.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has investigated the combination without making a report or taking action. It has given judgment to an independent producer for a considerable sum against the combination in a case which involved the whole question of an illegal trust, but it went no farther than the case at bar. Congress has tried to force the railroads out of the coal business apart ... The ... communities ... of the Reading ... ... has been elected. [illegible] against the combination went before the Supreme Court and the government won on some points, but the combination won on others and there has been no visible change in the way the anthracite business is conducted. Finally the Department of Justice has instituted a dissolution suit, which will last a few years, and then we shall see whether it amounts to anything more than the other attacks.

BIRDS, INSECTS AND CROPS.

The enormous damage done to crops in this country in a single year by the hordes of insects allowed to exist because of the destruction of birds for game purposes is forcibly put when it is stated that it is larger by many millions than the cost of the education of all the children of the nation. That is not only a picturesque form of statement, but it presents a serious situation which ought to interest the people to a much larger extent than it does at present. Protests are indeed heard often and emphatically against the wanton destruction of bird life in various parts of the country and many efforts have been made to secure uniform legislation on the subject, so that the indiscriminate slaughter can be prevented, but all this has amounted to little in a practical way and not much improvement has been noted in the conditions resulting from the killing of birds and the consequent increase of insects and their ravages on the crops of the farmers.

How serious this situation is can be estimated by the statement that the annual loss from the onslaughts of insects upon crops is not far from $800,000,000. That is a sum difficult to comprehend, and distressing to contemplate as an unnecessary loss to the country. It is a well established fact that birds feed upon insects, and naturally they would do much toward preserving at least a reasonable proportion of the crops now lost through the destructive habits of pests not kept in check because the birds are killed to satisfy the craving for excitement on the part of hunters or the demands of fashion for plumage for millinery purposes. It is a high price to pay for either or both these purposes, and entirely without reason when the value of the crops ruined and the addition they would make to the food supplies of the country are taken into consideration.

Reports based upon actual and accurate observations are numerous, showing the great capacity of many birds for consuming insects which are injurious to plant and vegetable life. These instances are so well substantiated that they cannot be doubted by the fair-minded, and yet the facts which they reveal as to the need of action are ignored and the great waste of food supplies is allowed to continue. Though it is almost criminal to permit this condition to continue, the progress made toward a better situation is small and slow. There is keen realization, in some circles, of the circumstances and of what is needed in order to meet them, but in others which would be most influential that appreciation is lacking or is overcome by the demands of other interests which seem more powerful.

It is doubtful if the farmers themselves as a class are wide awake to the importance of this matter. The agriculturists today have a strong organization with which they can affect legislation, both state and national. The Grange has already shown how great is the influence which it is able to exert if rightly directed, and if it should take up this movement with the same energy it has shown in other directions there is no doubt that it could soon accomplish what it set out to do and secure such legislation as may be necessary to protect the birds and save the crops. It is a matter which merits attention by this organized body of farmers and should appeal to it as something which it should do in the interest of its members and of the industry it represents. Eight hundred millions of dollars is surely worth saving, or even a part of that sum, particularly when it can be done by so easy a method as simply protecting the birds and allowing them to multiply and reduce the number of destructive insects by the natural process of consumption of food. Give the birds a chance and they will quickly lessen the number of the devouring insects and the damage they do.

The Democratic leaders are trying to pull the tariff bill out of caucus and making a supreme effort to reach a vote Saturday night. The return of Senator Newlands of Nevada, who has sent word that he desired to submit important amendments to the caucus, is eagerly awaited. If he joins the two Louisiana Senators in opposing the bill because it carries free sugar (after three years), it will be defeated, provided, of course, all the Republicans and the one progressive oppose it. There are several other matters connected with the bill which are not yet finally determined, among them the income tax clause, on which the Democrats have not been able to come together.

Secretary Bryan can hardly afford to lose John Bassett Moore, counsellor of the State Department, who from his knowledge of international law, has been a valuable assistant. During the frequent absences of Secretary Bryan on his lecturing tours Mr. Moore has been the virtual head of the department, but has been practically ignored in the administration's consideration of the Mexican affair. It is not to be wondered that he is not inclined to remain in such a position, but it would be a serious mistake for the President and the Secretary to let him go in the critical position in which the administration finds itself in regard to foreign affairs.

President Wilson still holds a hopeful view of the situation in Mexico and the ultimate success of his policy towards the provisional government headed by Huerta. The President and Secretary Bryan feel that the elimination of Huerta from the presidential race is assured and the first step towards the establishment of peace in Mexico accomplished. It is believed that the withdrawal of the demand for recognition of the present government in Mexico is a practical acknowledgement by Huerta and his followers that their case is hopeless.

The Providence board of aldermen has passed unanimously an ordinance increasing the annual pay of aldermen from $500 to $750 and that of members of the common council from $350 to $500. The advance will affect this year's councilmen, as they have been elected for terms of two years and will have one year to serve under the new figures. The returns of the tax assessors, indicating an increase of $365,000 in the city's revenues, is the excuse given for the salary increases.

Thaw's counsel are reported to have deserted him because they have found that there is no money in the case for them. If there had been no money at all behind him he would probably have been punished as other criminals are, and the world would not have had the disgusting, harmful details of the case spread before it. It is time we heard the last of this matter.

So the much advertised visitor from remote regions to the peaceful waters of the Seaconnet river turns out to be an ordinary piece of slag from a furnace, and not a meteor. As we expected.

The cooler weather gives evidence that we are entering upon the autumn, although there have been days in August in former years as cold as it is today.

"Who would you rather see get the commission?" If that is the way Newport contracts are, or are to be, awarded, it is well that the cat is out of the bag.

Our aldermen may not be actually on a strike, but some of them seem to have established a pretty successful walkout.

The arrest of William Travers Jerome is calculated to make Harry K. Thaw dance for joy.

THE BLUE OF DISTANCE.

Memories of Childhood Make Beauty Out of Things Not Themselves Beautiful.

[London Times.]

President Poincare, speaking the other day in his native town of Bar-le-Duc, said very simply how he loved it because of all the memories of his boyhood which it stirred in his mind—memories of children playing under the chestnuts in his mother's garden, of Sunday walks in the forests of the hills, of the schoolrooms in which he first discovered the love and delight of knowledge. Those things have often been said before, but they will never become platitudes, for to speak of such memories is to quicken them in the minds of others, to begin a music of thought in which everyone can join, for everyone knows the tune of it. Even those who spent their childhood in an ugly back street think of it as unlike other back streets, for there is something stronger than reason that transforms its monotony for them, giving to it the inexplicable significance of a dream.

We cast about for explanations of this feeling, but the stronger it is in us the less will any explanation satisfy us. People say that the minds of children, being empty of experience, receive their first experiences most vividly. But that does not explain why we have so much delight in the memory of them. There is nothing to prove that childhood is happier than later years. Indeed, we remember things connected with the sharp griefs of childhood just as eagerly as things connected with its joys. Both start the same music in our minds, the same vain but delightful passion for what can never be again. It is like the blue of distance which enchants a country not more strange and beautiful in itself than the ground we tread, and which makes us desire to reach it even while we know that it can only be seen from afar.

Memory, when it deals thus with childhood, is like a great artist who can make beauty out of things not beautiful in themselves. Indeed, we are often aware that the things themselves which we remember are not beautiful, but only our remembrance of them. That by some means, makes a harmony of them like the harmony of art, and in poetry or music or pictures we recognize the same harmony which memory makes of our childhood. So when a man returns to his native place after long absence, it is not like common reality to him, but rather like the more intense and coherent reality of art. For memory lays its own emphasis upon everything and the houses of the village street are as different from houses elsewhere as words in poetry are different from words in ordinary speech.

TAXING FOODSTUFFS.

Canadian Farmers Note Changes in the American Tariff.

[Toronto Globe.]

The fiscal revolution in the United States will be accomplished soon and the Democratic revenue tariff will be the law. While the taxes on metals, textiles, forest products and similar articles are greatly reduced, the chief object of the Wilson administration has been to strike a blow at the trusts and combinations—such as the meat trust and the fish trust—that have been taking advantage of the tariff to enhance unduly the cost of foodstuffs. The farmers have discovered that dear meat does not necessarily mean high prices for cattle, and that the price of wheat and oats has no very close relation to the cost of flour or oatmeal. They no longer believe that protection protects the farmer. Only from the states along the Canadian border has there been any strong and organized protest against the policy of duty-free food. The changes made by the bill as it was presented to the Senate and as it will probably pass into law are sweeping. On the free list are the following articles:

Biscuits, bread, buckwheat, flour of buckwheat, cocoa, coffee, corn meal, fresh eggs, freshwater fish, lard and lard substitutes, lemon and lime juice, meats (including fresh beef, veal, mutton, lamb, pork, bacon and hams), prepared and preserved meats, livestock (including cattle, sheep, lambs and swine), milk and cream (fresh and preserved or condensed), potatoes (but only duty-free from countries which impose no duty on United States potatoes, otherwise 10 per cent ad valorem), rye and rye flour, sago salt, seeds, shrimps, lobster and other shell fish, tea (packages in which it comes are dutiable), tapioca, wheat and wheat flour (provided that wheat shall be subject to a duty of 10 cents per bushel, and that wheat flour shall be subject to a duty of 45 cents per barrel of 196 pounds when imported from a country that imposes a duty on United States wheat or flour).

The duties on other foodstuffs are greatly reduced. The barley duty is 15 cents per bushel, and one cent a pound on pearled or hulled; oats six cents a bushel and 33 cents per hundred weight for rolled oats; rice, one cent a pound; biscuits or bread containing chocolate, nuts, or confectionery, 25 per cent; butter and butter substitutes, 2½ cents per pound; cheese and substitutes, 2½ cents per pound; vegetables, fresh, 15 per cent, preserved, 25 per cent; honey 10 cents per gallon; peas 10 cents per bushel, green or dried; lentils and beans, 25 cents per bushel.

How long will Canada continue to tax the food of her people in face of the fiscal revolution in the United States? The cost of living is as great a problem in our rapidly growing cities as in those of the republic. The consumer has to pay out millions of dollars every year in food taxes that are of no benefit to the farmer or orchardist. We imported last year, for example, over $16,000,000 worth of fruit, a large part of it dutiable and brought in at seasons when no Canadian fresh fruit could be obtained. We brought in over $3,000,000 worth of vegetables under the same conditions. Over $20,000,000 worth of breadstuffs and provisions came into Canada last year over the tariff wall, paying millions in duties. The taxation of foodstuffs is the least defensible of all tariff duties, because it bears far more heavily on the poor than on the well-to-do. A poor man usually spends, if a householder, from a third to a half of his income on food. A rich man will rarely spend a tenth of his income on foodstuffs. Recognizing this fact, the people of the United States are practically wiping out the duties on food and imposing a tax on incomes of over $4,000 a year to make good the loss of revenue.

How long, in face of this enlightened policy, will Parliament continue to tax the food of the Canadian people?

HOW TO TIP IN PARIS.

[Baltimore Sun.]

Complaints are constantly made by American visitors in Paris this season that the exertion they meet at every turn is now worse than ever. This is due principally to the ill advised prodigality of Americans, especially South Americans, who are greatly afraid of being thought mean by not doing the handsome thing, and who, consequently, in some cases, never give less than a franc for anything. Waiters, chauffeurs, shoe-shiners, theatre attendants and the rest of the great army who live on "pour boires" now have become so exacting that many Americans are complaining that tips total 25 or 30 per cent of their whole expenditures.

This is quite unnecessary and only needs a little firmness on the part of visitors to force the inflated state of the tipping system back to reasonable proportions. For an American staying at a hotel here 10 per cent of the total bill, distributed among the staff for a short stay, or, for a longer one, 5 per cent, or even less, according to the amount of the bill, will be ample. For the taxicab chauffeur 10 per cent of the fare, with a five cents minimum, will satisfy all requirements. At the restaurant no waiter has the right to expect more than 10 per cent of the bill.

As to that irritating institution, the "ouvreuse", when at the theatre, if as usually happens, she asks a tip without performing the slightest service, nothing should be given, or, if it be required, get rid of her quickly with five cents, at most. On the other hand, if she makes herself useful in some way, 10 cents is ample.

Americans regulating their tipping on these lines may be sure that they are giving quite as much as they should, and probably more than the average Parisian, while at the same time they will be earning the gratitude of their country-men for the future.

TO RAISE A SUNKEN FLEET.

For something like 80 years more than 60 ships which once comprised the Turko-Egyptian fleet have been lying at the bottom of Navarino bay, fathoms deep, but yet in water so clear and still that the sunken timbers can be seen from a rowboat. A scheme is now on foot to recover the lost ships, and with the aid of apparatus invented by a Scotch engineer it is proposed to raise the fleet from its watery grave.

It is not altogether a submarine treasure hunt, but a serious proposition planned on business lines. It is said that the papers of the Egyptian admiral indicate that there were aboard the ships some millions of dollars, bags full of gold and thousands of ducats, with large quantities of jewelry, but what the New Salvage Company is actually after is the ships' timber and the guns, whose value is calculated at $3,850,000.

There are 63 ships and 20 transports, and of these 43 have been actually located.

THE WEATHER.

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Forecast for Boston and vicinity—Unsettled tonight; Saturday fair; light variable winds.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Forecast for southern New England—Rain this afternoon; cloudy tonight; Saturday fair; light to moderate variable winds.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Forecast for northern New England—Probably fair tonight and Saturday; light variable winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The high pressure that was noted Thursday over Ontario has extended eastward through Quebec. During the past 24 hours rain has occurred in southern New England, eastern New York state and in South Atlantic and eastern Gulf states. The prevailing east and northeast winds in northeastern portions of the country have caused a continuance of rather low temperatures. The temperature is still above the seasonable average in Middle Atlantic states and the central valleys. In New York city at 8 a. m. the temperature was 68, Boston 56, Washington 72, New Orleans 72, Chicago 70 and San Francisco 58.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Daniel Tobin of This City and Captain Braley, Steamboat Pilot.

Mr. Daniel Tobin, a well known resident of the Fifth ward, died this morning at his residence, 472 Thames street, after a short illness. He was a native of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, and came to Newport about 30 years ago, having since been actively engaged in the building industry. He was a charter member of Local No. 176, Carpenters and Joiners of America, and also a member of the St. Mary's Holy Name May and Emma Tobin, and one son, ters—Mrs. Owen C. McDonald, Mrs. James A. Dunphy and Misses Annie, May and Emma Tobin—and one son, Mr. Daniel P. Tobin.

Captain Angelo D. Braley, for more than 30 years a pilot and captain of Sound steamers, died Wednesday afternoon at his home in Fall River. He had been ill for the past three years, but had not been in the best of health for several years before his sickness was considered of a serious nature. Through his many years of service on the Fall River line, Captain Braley was widely known a decade ago. He was a master mariner, an efficient seaman, and a capable executive who established an enviable reputation during the more than quarter-century that he was connected with the Sound line.

SELECTIONS FROM "ELIJAH."

To be Sung, in Addition to Anthems, by United Congregational Quartet.

Rev. G. A. Hulbert, pastor of the United Congregational Church, has arranged a special musical service for next Sunday evening, when the quartet choir, in addition to the usual two anthems will sing seven selections from Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," and Rev. Mr. Hulbert will tell briefly the Bible story from which the oratorio is written. The selections to be sung by the quartet, which consists of Mr. T. Fred Harry, tenor and musical director; Daniel U. Boone, baritone; Miss Carrie V. Anthony, soprano, and Mrs. Frank S. Hale, contralto, will be as follows:

Tenor solo, "Man of God."

Tenor solo, "It is enough."

Tenor solo, "See now, he sleepeth."

Soprano solo, "He, watching over Israel."

Alto solo, "Arise, Elijah."

Aria for soprano, "O Rest in the Lord."

Four-part number, "O, Come, every-one that thirsteth."

The quartet will also sing the anthems, "The Lord is Good," by West, and "My God, my Father, while I stray," by Marston.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—The stores are beginning to decorate for Perry day.

—Steam yacht Vixen coaled at the Newport Coal Company dock today.

—A draft of 45 apprentices will leave the Training Station tonight for New York.

—Barge W. H. Brown has discharged a cargo of coal for Pinniger & Manchester.

—Mr. A. G. Vanderbilt's steam yacht Adroit sailed Thursday, to lay up for the season.

—Mr. John J. Harrington has returned from a week's visit to relatives in Lewiston, Maine.

—Barge 794 of the Lehigh Valley line is in with a cargo of ice for the Newport Ice Company.

—Barkentine Newport, the New York schoolship, arrived this afternoon from her summer cruise. There being plenty of room in Brenton's cove, she came into the inner harbor to anchor.

—Mr. Blair Thaw, who was here today, states that his brother William, who has been expected by hydroaeroplane for some days, has been busy at Watch Hill, taking up passengers for a spin, and may now be expected here by the air line at any time.

—The easterly wind still prevails and the temperature shows a decided drop from Thursday, when it was really hot in the forenoon. People were talking about frost this morning. It rained hard during the night, .51 of an inch falling, and it looks as if more might fall at any time.

—People are still traveling up the City Hall stairs to the office of the superintendent of schools and wearing out the stairs as they have not been worn out before in the same time. Up to the close of office hours Thursday Superintendent Lull had issued 101 permits for new pupils, against 96 for the same time last year.

—Thursday City Treasurer Taylor was in Boston, to pay at the First National Bank the treasurer's notes issued in anticipation of taxes. In consequence the treasury is today $_____ short of the amount before he left here, for that was the total of the notes issued. There is still a balance, however.

—At Thursday's session of the fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Narragansett Baptist Association, at the Quidnessett Church, North Kingstown, Rev. Arthur Crane of the First Baptist Church of this city preached the sermon. The Association voted to hold its annual meeting in Newport in 1914. The First Baptist and Shiloh churches of this city are members of the Association.

—Mr. William Dockray of Newark, N. J., who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Pember, left this morning for Newburyport, Mass., where he will play the rest of the week. Miss Marjorie M. Dockray, Miss Ella M. Dockray, Miss Olive Dockray, of Woonsocket and Miss Marion Sprague of Fall River have returned to their homes after spending the summer with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Pember.

—The Forty Hours Devotion was begun at St. Mary's Church this morning with a solemn high mass at 8 o'clock, which was well attended. The church was decorated with bay trees and the altar with American Beauty roses. The services incident to the first Friday of the month also took place. The Forty Hours will close Sunday with a solemn high mass at the 11 o'clock service.

—Eight of the candidates for backfield positions on the Yale 'Varsity football team have arrived at Bateman's for preliminary practice on the Westchester Polo Club's ground, under the direction of Dr. William T. Knox, famous Yale fullback of former days. The players will have light practice in punting, running with the ball and forward passes until Thursday, when they will go to New Haven to begin full team work, being joined then by 24 linemen candidates who are at Bateman's for their preliminary work.

THE MEN WHO ARE TO GO.

Personnel of Newport Artillery Company for the Put-in-Bay Trip.

Orders Issued by Colonel King for the Start, Uniforms and Conduct During their Absence.

After several weeks of indecision and of wrangling in Providence, the matter of the whole company of the Newport Artillery making the trip to Put-in-Bay having been favorably decided, the final arrangements have now been made. Every man in the Artillery has been looking forward to this trip and probably Monday morning cannot come too soon for most of them. Orders have been issued by Colonel King for every man to be at the Armory on Clarke street by 6 o'clock and the start will be made at 6:30. The train will leave for Providence by way of Fall River at 7:15, and is due to arrive in Providence shortly after eight. The artillery will immediately join the rest of the official delegation and the whole party will leave Providence for Buffalo at 8:30.

The men will wear their dress uniforms and carry their special full dress Colonial uniforms, which will be worn in the various drills at Put-in-Bay and elsewhere. All the luggage which they wish to carry must be at the armory Sunday afternoon, and provision will be made for its transportation.

The men have been warned to keep their appearance neat during the trip, as the company wishes to maintain the high reputation which in previous years it has so successfully established. They are all impressed with the fact that this is one of the greatest trips it has ever fallen to the lot of the Artillery to make, and means much to the company. Consequently every man has determined to do his part in helping the company to make a showing which will reflect the highest credit upon the state of Rhode Island and the city of Newport.

The company has an excellent record on the drill floor and in order that this reputation may be sustained it has been drilling faithfully both indoors and on the streets. Sunday morning the company will march to Emmanuel Church, to attend the annual services for the Artillery, at which Rev. Mr. Porter, chaplain of the organization, will deliver the sermon. This will give the Newporters an opportunity to see the company in its new Colonial uniform, as these will be worn if the weather permits.

The personnel of the company, as it leaves Monday for Put-in-Bay, is as follows:

Colonel Frank P. King, Commanding.

Staff—Captain William E. Braley, adjutant, chief of staff; Major Christopher F. Barker, surgeon; First Lieutenant Harry H. Hayden, paymaster; First Lieutenant Silas H. Hazard, commissary; First Lieutenant Henry H. Luther, assistant surgeon; First Lieutenant Charles E. Goodhue, inspector small arms practice; Rev. Emery H. Porter, first lieutenant and chaplain.

Non-Commissioned Staff—Sergeant Major William J. Dawley, Commissary Sergeant Milton Dennis, Ordnance Sergeant Thomas H. Lawton, Acting Quartermaster Sergeant George H. Taylor.

Musicians—Chief Musician Daniel A. Peckham, Musicians Henry C. Sherman, Jr., David A. Brown, Spencer F. Brown, Charles A. Sherman, Frank Peabody, Charles Hall, Frank Peckham, Robert Stoddard, William E. Patrick, Jr.

Color Guard—Sergeants Charles T. Bliss, Frank W. King; Privates James L. Smith, Frank M. Johnson.

Third Company—First Lieutenant James W. Thompson, Commanding.

Sergeants—John H. Feltham, Leon J. Dawley.

Corporals—Alonzo A. Knowe, Sydney D. Reynolds, Enos Titcomb.

Privates—George Rodda, Frank Pearson, Henry Schiller, Harold Stoddard, Henry Aney, Horace Brown, Vincent Pinto, J. Stedman Ward, Frank Koschny, Elsworth Hitt, J. Lincoln Turner, A. D. Watson, John Smith, John Wenck.

Next Wednesday, the one hundredth anniversary of Perry's victory on Lake Erie, will be a legal holiday in Rhode Island, in accordance with a resolution passed by the General Assembly last winter. It will be observed as a holiday by the closing of public offices and banks, and there is a movement under way to have a general suspension of business during the day. Already signs have appeared in shop windows announcing that they will be closed, and it is expected that the movement will become universal except in those stores which cater to the holiday trade.

The Lawrence Club has already voted to help the celebration in this city by decorating the clubhouse and holding open house, naval officers being especially invited. There will be displayed in front of the clubhouse, which was once Perry's home, a reproduction of the flagship of Perry's fleet, the famous Lawrence. At night the little ship will be outlined in electric lights. The club has also accepted the loan of the reproduction of the Constellation, and this will be turned over to the Park Commission and will occupy a prominent position on the Mall.

ON THE POLICE RECORD.

Soldier Fined for Carrying Weapons and Larceny—Taunton Runaway Lad Located.

The police this morning had a soldier on a double complaint, carrying concealed weapons and larceny. Ernest E. Stewart, while shaving a man in his shop, noticed in the mirror a soldier go to the drawer and take out some money. Stewart dropped his shaving and made the man hand back the money, $6. Later he found that some razors which he had just finished honing had disappeared. Still later Officer Hamilton arrested John J. Lyons on Downing street, because he had been seen with an open razor in his hand. As this rather put the neighborhood against the wielder of the razor a complaint was made to the officer, who found two razors in his pocket. At the police station Stewart recognized the razors as two of the four missing from his shop. This morning Lyons was arraigned on two warrants, carrying concealed weapons and larceny. The court said $13.60 and $12.60 were the amounts, the total cost being $26.20, and he had it not.

Thursday Officer Leeson brought in a lad named Peter Pereira, aged 12 years, on a charge of sleeping out. The boy had been to the house where the officer lives two days before for something to eat, and it was evident he had been sleeping out since, so he took him in. The lad said he lived out by the Two Mile Corner, but that his mother would not be home before 5 p. m. and his father later, so the patrol wagon was sent out after 5 to see that he was placed in the custody of his parents. After chasing all over the country for about two hours the patrol returned, because no one out that way recognized the lad. It was evident that telling the truth was not the boy's strong point, for he told half a dozen different tales. Finally this morning he agreed that he lived at 122 Washington street, Taunton. The police communicated with Captain McDonald of the Taunton force, who said the boy had been gone from home a month and had been away from home four or five times before. His father will come for him.

Echoes of the trouble on Washington square Wednesday night continue. One participant was brought in, charged with obstructing an officer making an arrest. He was fined $25 and costs, $27.60, which he paid. Another of the crowd paid $7.60 for revelling.

BISHOP WALTERS TO LECTURE ALSO.

The Union Congregational Church will hold special services all day Sunday in the endeavor to round up the rally. August 3 the church received $848.07 from its effort, and now hopes to make the total considerably more than $1,000. Bishop Alexander Walters of New York, who will occupy the pulpit at all services, is widely known as a pulpit orator of reputation. This will be his first public appearance in Newport.

Tuesday evening at the Union Congregational Church he will give his lecture on "Closed and Opened Doors". Unusual interest is centered in this lecture, as Bishop Walters is the most intimate negro adviser and friend of President Wilson, and is able to speak with authority on what the negro may reasonably expect from an alliance with the Democratic party.

BOSTON NEMO ME IMPUNE LACESSIT STORE

THE KAISER'S UNIFORMS.

German Emperor Has Nearly 3,000 Military Suits and is a Quick-Change Artist.

[Tit Bits.]

The German emperor has more uniforms than any other sovereign, so great are the number of military, naval and other titles he owns in his own and other countries. His uniforms, which have been computed at nearly 3,000 in all, are in charge of his head valet, who has 12 other valets working under him. The valet requires to be an expert on military uniform, for it is no light task to remember the accessories in the way of swords, epaulets, helmets, etc., to go with nearly 3,000 uniforms, for each detail must be exact, and a mistake in regard to this would cost him his place.

It is, perhaps, on the occasion of his royal master's visit to foreign countries that the resources of the head valet are taxed to their utmost. The Kaiser insists on always dressing the part correctly. On his visits to this country much astonishment has been expressed at his skill as a quick-change artist.

On one occasion, when his yacht, the Hohenzollern, was off the British coast, the officials stationed at Port Victoria to receive him sighted him through marine glasses standing on the bridge in the uniform of a German general. Great was their astonishment when, on landing barely 10 minutes later, he greeted them dressed as an English admiral. He was escorted to his special train, wherein he disappeared for a few moments, walking into the saloon in the uniform of the First Royal Dragoons. Finally, upon arriving in London, he stepped off the train in the conventional frock coat and top hat of an English gentleman.

The keeping of such an extensive wardrobe is somewhat of a task. It is said that for the four palaces in and around Berlin 50 boxes of naphthaline moth balls and 30 of camphor and cedar shavings are required to resist the depredations of the moth. When it is remembered that the Kaiser has nearly 50 other palaces besides in various parts of his kingdom, in all of which full sets of uniforms are kept, it can be imagined that the money spent on moth destroyers must run into a tidy little sum every year.

ALARM OVER THE CURRENCY BILL.

Some Democrats Fear It Will Not Pass, With Tariff Still in the Way.

Wilson Thinks It Will Become Law—Extra Session Keeps President in Washington.

[Washington correspondence of the News.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—There are Democrats who still believe that a currency bill will not be passed at this session of Congress. They still believe it will be possible to keep a quorum of the Senate in Washington after the tariff bill is out of the way and that after there has been some time given to the currency bill it will be postponed until December.

Of course the President has no such intention in his mind. He believes that a currency bill can just as well pass this summer (or fall it will be when the bill comes before the Senate) as to wait until the next session of Congress. There is some intimation that the Republican Senators will not make any effort to stay here after the tariff bill is passed and that the Democrats will be unable to keep enough of their Senators here to make a quorum. "There will be no currency bill until January," remarked one of the observing Democratic Senators.

Soon after he became President Mr. Wilson remarked to a friend that "as soon as Congress adjourns I will take a trip to Panama to look over the canal and will spend the balance of the summer in New Hampshire with my family."

That made people smile, particularly those who knew just how long it takes to pass a tariff bill through Congress. The President has not yet had an opportunity to visit Panama, and, aside from 10 days in New Hampshire, he has been right here in Washington.

Several bills were introduced in Congress a few weeks ago permitting males of 18 years of age to make homestead entries on public lands. Heretofore both men and women of 21 years had the right to take lands. Just why there was a discrimination in the bills proposed is not known although it is assumed that a boy of 18 was better able to hold down a claim than a girl of the same age. Congressman Kinkaid of Nebraska, however, has introduced a bill which will give the girls an equal chance with the boys. He proposes that all persons now permitted to enter public lands at the age of 21 shall likewise be permitted to enter lands when 18 years old.

There is not the best of feeling between Senator Stone of Missouri and Senator Lippitt of Rhode Island. The latter was saying something that Stone did not like, and he retorted: "The Senator is too much given to saying offensive things of that kind."

"The Senator from Missouri," replied Lippitt, "is not free from the charge of saying offensive things. If stating facts hurts his feelings I cannot help it."

"The Senator provokes retorts to which he now objects," said Stone, "if he would behave himself he would not have so much occasion to be chastised."

"I will not go into the relative merits of the Senator from Missouri and myself," replied Lippitt, and that ended the controversy for the time.

Senator Brandegee of Connecticut had been telling the Senate what awful things were going to happen to the Democratic party on account of the tariff bill, which called up Ollie James of Kentucky with his usual hot retorts, in which he had something to say about the "political funeral of last November."

Then Senator Borah of Idaho broke in with the remark: "I simply rise to say that I do not know who started this filibuster, but I am not in sympathy with it."

As the federal government seems to be doing about everything, Mark Smith of Arizona suggests that birds be protected under the interstate commerce clause of the constitution. He does not say just how, but it seems that almost anything can be done with that clause. "Let us get some device to make up what the states lack in performance of their duty," said the Arizona senator, discussing the feather amendment of the tariff bill. "Let us do something to prevent the slaughter of song birds. I am intensely in favor of the protection of bird life."

Every few days there is a discussion as to which side of the Senate chamber is doing the talking. Republicans deny they have talked unduly, although once in awhile some one of them criticises the Democrats for not giving more time to the explanation of the bill. After one of those desultory debates as to who was doing the most talking Senator Stone of Missouri remarked: "This seems to me to be a fine example of useless conversation."

VAE VICTIS!

[Ellery Benson in Lippincott's.]

The conquest of America was too big a job for the English army and the English navy, but the English sparrow is made of different stuff. He wears no flashy red coat, and when he goes forth to war the beat of drums is conspicuous by its absence. It was only a comparatively short time after he landed on our shores until he had us, in the words of the day, "tied to a post."

And it never cost him a cent. He made us pay all the expenses of the war and then "beat us to it." That is the height of military strategy—something that neither Hannibal nor Napoleon achieved except in a much lesser degree.

Each year we pay an enormous tribute to the English sparrow—more, probably, than was ever paid by a conquered nation before in the history of the world.

The English sparrow doesn't even pretend to be in favor of universal peace. He has never heard of The Hague Tribunal; he [illegible] make no difference with him. His work is war, he is always on the job, and he has nothing to arbitrate.

CLUB SWINGER COLLAPSES.

"Tom" Burrows, the Australian all-around athlete and champion club swinger, collapsed at a London exhibition in an attempt to swing three and one half pound clubs 100 hours continuously. He succeeded in keeping the clubs in motion for 57 hours and 25 minutes and then dropped over. Last April Burrows swung a pair of three-pound [illegible] clubs for more than 100 hours, but later became delirious.

CHARGES FAVORITISM.

Secretary Daniels Makes Official Statement on Marine Corps Ruling.

Charges of favoritism and discrimination flew thick Thursday in the controversy aroused by the order of Secretary of the Navy Daniels that the "aptitude and probable efficiency test" be eliminated from the grading of the examination papers of the latest candidates for second lieutenancies in the marine corps. Friends of the candidates who were dropped from the eligible list when the Secretary had the judge advocate general remark the papers, disregarding aptitude and efficiency, are fighting hard.

The Secretary came very close to a direct charge that the examining board had shown favoritism, in the following statement: "The real point in the matter is the question of efficiency and is merely one of opinion. It is not decided by any examination. It opens the door to select by a rule that is not uniform. There has been criticism in the past that it has been employed to help applicants known to or favored by public officials or boards. Inasmuch as the opinion of men is open to such diverse influences, it cannot be contended that it is a test that is always just or fair.

"I wish examinations that give equal test to all and eliminate all chance and varying opinion. As long as the opinion of one man or three men as to 'efficiency' or 'aptitude' prevails there is danger of injustice or favoritism or mistake. If selection is made purely upon written examinations there is no element of personal judgment or favoritism and no danger of either. I am trying to eliminate all temptation and opportunity to favor any man."

Secretary Daniels bases his action largely upon the fact that the examining board, of which Colonel Lincoln Karmany was president, gave a low aptitude mark to John C. Foster, chief yeoman, forcing him down to eighth place on the eligible list. When the "aptitude and probable efficiency" test was disregarded, he stood second.

Mr. Daniels was particularly displeased because Foster's friends complained that he had been ordered from Washington to Philadelphia on the eve of the examination. Mr. Daniels inquired why this was done, but, it is said, was unable to find out. He ordered Foster to return. It is also said that, when Foster first applied for designation for the examination, he was told at marine headquarters that he was ineligible because he was a petty officer of the navy and not of the marine corps. Mr. Daniels received a contrary opinion from the judge advocate general of the navy, and after the examination, was displeased with the aptitude mark of 69 given to Foster, whose rise from the ranks he commended.

The lips of marine officers are sealed, but there is much quiet comment on the fact that the changes in the examination markings brought on the eligible list Louis M. Bourne and Allen H. Turnage, both of North Carolina, the Secretary's state, who had been dropped from the naval Academy for deficiency in studies.

JEROME ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF GAMBLING.

and uncertain of what would happen, told him he was under arrest. Jerome started with surprise, then smiled and was led away to jail.

Hector Verret, of counsel for New York, in the Thaw proceedings, hurried to the jail, and thence to the office of the justice of the peace and drew up a bail bond. Hanson, the prosecutor, followed him and told the justice the prisoner could not be admitted to bail at once, but should be held for 24 hours and perhaps 48 hours. "I'll have to look up my law books," the justice said.

"I demand Jerome's release at once," shouted Verret. "This is an outrage."

Finally McKee "allowed" that he would go to the court house and see what could be done.

Mr. Jerome was brought in and in seven minutes the formalities were arranged.

Should Thaw be deported suddenly, it will be necessary for Jerome to forfeit his bail. There was disagreement as to the penalty for his alleged offense. Prosecutor Hanson insisted that a jail sentence only was provided. Mr. Verret thought a nominal fine, on conviction, would be more likely. There was a hurried scanning of statute books this afternoon to clear the matter up.

Thaw laughed when he was told of the arrest. "I knew that man would never come to any good end," he said, sarcastically.

Thaw was on the stand most of the day yesterday and made a good witness. Toward the close of the afternoon session his inquisitors gradually worked into the question of his sanity, and though his counsel violently objected it was of no avail.

Though staving off deportation for the day, Thaw lost in two particulars. His lawyers were denied a writ of prohibition by Superior Judge Matthew Hutchinson at Sherbrooke, the same judge who sustained the writ of habeas corpus which cast Thaw out of the Sherbrooke jail Wednesday, and he failed to establish before the board the contention that he entered Canada as a tourist and like "Jack" Johnson should be allowed to continue to his destination. He could produce no through ticket to any point outside of Canada. There was in his possession a ticket to Detroit, but unfortunately for Thaw it had been purchased at Coaticook.

Unable to show that he had come into the Dominion at any recognized port of entry, Thaw was practically convicted of entering by stealth, and on this charge alone he can be deported. But on this charge he could appeal to the minister of the interior, while no appeal would lie should he be found insane at the present time or to have been in an insane asylum within five years. If found of unsound mind now, it is within the discretion of the board to deport Thaw direct to the New York state line, possibly to Rouse's Point. This would mean swift and certain return to Matteawan. Conviction on either of the two other charges would mean deportation to Vermont.

Thaw resented keenly the questions as to his sanity. If this line of questioning is to be taken up, he contended he should be allowed to have alienists present. Two physicians for the immigration authorities, Drs. Gerd and Beauchamp, were present.

When asked pointblank if he was sane or insane when he killed Stanford White, Thaw quoted, with remarkable show of memory, from the conflicting opinions of the many alienists identified with his case, and laconically suggested that the board take its choice.

He shuddered when asked about his mother's condition just prior to his birth, and said that perhaps she was better qualified to answer. Mrs. Thaw, though it had been reported she had left Pittsburg on her way here, had not arrived tonight.

Thaw issued the following statement last night: "Being informed that one motive behind this illegal pursuit is a suspicion in a small but influential quarter that if put on trial in any court outside New York state we might uncover those names that were protected in 1907, we are forced to state we have no intention of uncovering those names that were left in blank."

The New York authorities, who are determined to see Thaw back in Matteawan, are growing impatient. They have been sleeping two in a bed in Coaticook's over-taxed hotels and the strain of delay is telling on them.

William Travers Jerome, especially deputized to land the fugitive back in the asylum, spent all yesterday near the hearing room, his automobile primed for a race to the Vermont border whenever word should come that deportation had been decreed. He was prepared to spend another such day today, though he fervently hoped it would be the last.

Thaw has been perhaps the least disturbed person of all. He was shocked and stunned when the habeas corpus was sustained, but the trip here by automobile did not bother him in the least, and yesterday's grilling was so much like the court battles of old that he was unruffled, except when asked about his mother.

Mrs. Thaw had not arrived here today and in the absence of any other information it was assumed that her health would not permit the trip. The non-appearance of any members of the family, barring the flying trip of Mr and Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie to Sherbrooke, has puzzled the lawyers for both sides. One of the Thaw lawyers expressed the belief that the Thaws did not want to see Harry free. They were surprised and pleased at the neat way he slipped out of Matteawan, and of course, hoped he would make a clean get-a-way, but when he was caught up here and this involved legal fight was started, the family, in his lawyers' opinion, seeing ahead a terrible burden of expense with defeat in the end, figuratively threw up their hands.

Crowd again came to look up at Thaw's barred windows today. As was the case yesterday, Thaw kept away from the windows as much as possible. When a first glimpse was caught of him this morning, he was smoking a pipe and chatting with a guard.

WHO WILL HAVE THE COMMISSION?

opinion was any better than that of a member of the board.

Alderman Kelly said he believed the Pope-Hartford as good as any; that is why he supported it. It would not look well for him to shift to another machine which he did not believe as good.

Alderman Albro said Chief Kirwin had told him any of the machines offered would do for the city of Newport, but "Who would you rather see get the commission?" That was the whole thing. The speaker was opposed to the Pope-Hartford and would do all he could to prevent its purchase—he urged that the matter be left open until the return of the mayor, and then if he desires to vote for the Pope Hartford he would have no cause for complaint—but let him have a vote on the matter.

The three Pope-Hartford men seemed determined to proceed to a vote and Alderman Albro stood up, ready to leave. Alderman Leddy was ready to put the question, which had been seconded by Mr. Kelly, to proceed to a vote and Alderman Albro stepped out. When the motion was put and adopted and it was certain that the board would proceed to a vote Alderman Kirby, who had made a strong plea to have the question passed, arose and went out. As he went Mr. Kelly said there was other business, but the board then was going on with the Pope-Hartford matter and Mr. Kirby stepped out.

The board was again left without a quorum and automatically adjourned, no question being raised as to a quorum.

BABY HAD ECZEMA IN WORST FORM

Started With Rash on Face. Would Dry Up and Form Scabs. Watery Substance. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured. They Also Cured Other Two Children of Eruption.

72 Allison St., Newton, Mass. — "I have six children and used Cuticura Soap and Ointment on three of them. One girl ten years old had sores on her head. I used a box of Cuticura Ointment and it healed very quickly.

"Now within this last year my little boy, two years old, broke out with a mass of sores on the chin that would not heal, so I sent for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it healed in about three weeks.

"The oldest boy broke out with eczema in the worst form, starting with a rash on the face when about two months old. Then sores commenced behind the ears, then the rash broke into sores all over his face. During the day it would dry up and form scabs, later in the day a watery substance would ooze out and commence itching. During the night he would scratch and in the morning his face would be all raw. His hands, nightgown and pillow were covered with blood. I had to make bags out of flannel to put on his hands and put a hood on his head. I then started using Cuticura Remedies. From then on the face started to heal and I kept at it until he was cured." (Signed) Mrs. G. Karcher, Feb. 16, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Your shoemaker and his trade-mark

This mark is on every McELWAIN SHOE

THERE is a shoemaker in Boston who makes twelve million pairs of shoes a year for men and boys. He puts this mark on his shoes so that you can recognize the best shoes wherever you buy.

This mark upon a pair of shoes tells a story longer than we can get into a single advertisement. It tells in the shortest possible way that the pair of shoes which carries it, is good because of the system that is behind it; because it is the product of a shoe factory so highly specialized that every part of the shoe is made in the best possible way, in the best possible factory for the purpose. It means a shoe made in the right way, from the right materials, by the most skillful workmen, so that you get all the benefit, and pay for no loss, no waste, no uncertainty.

It means that that shoe is the best shoe for the money that can be made; is the best shoe for anybody; is the best shoe for you. It means that having tried and worn it to your satisfaction, as millions of people have, the trade-mark gives you a name by which you can ask for your next pair of shoes, to obtain a pair equally good.

This is only a part of the story that the McElwain trade-mark tells, but every part of that story is interesting, and every part of it is important to you. We are going to tell the rest of the story in this paper from time to time.

If your shoe dealer sells the McElwain Shoe, he knows the rest of the story, and he will tell it to you or sell you the McElwain Shoe, or both.

THE HEAVENS IN SEPTEMBER.

Aspect of the Skies Steadily Changing as Season of Long Nights Comes On.

The Month of the Harvest Moon Marked by Two Eclipses and Two Occultations.

[Professor Eric Doolittle, of the University of Pennsylvania.]

No one can have failed to notice how rapidly the long summer days have been shortening during the last few weeks; the darkness which on the successive evenings during the beginning of July fell so little earlier that the shortening of the days was barely noticeable now advances so rapidly on the daylight hours that we may almost feel that each day is perceptibly shorter than the day which preceded it. On the twenty-third of the present month at 10 hours 52 minutes A. M. the centre of the sun will cross the celestial equator; this day and the preceding night will hence be of equal lengths, and after this time the nights will be longer than the days.

As our season of long nights draws near the aspect of the evening heavens is seen to be steadily altering from that of the midsummer sky. Our map shows the stars which are easily visible at 9 P. M. September 1, and the appearance of the heavens at this time is exactly the same as that which may be seen at 7 P. M. on September 30. On the latter date at 9 o'clock in the evening the Scorpion will have entirely set, the beautiful Hyades and Pleiades will shine out well above the ground in the east and the Bright Eagle, with its bluish star, Altair, at it. Still nearer the ground we may now study the most interesting group known as Sagittarius, or the Archer, whose flying Arrow is far higher in the sky at C. Just in the middle of this constellation there now shines out the beautiful planet Jupiter; when we again see this part of the sky in this same position one year from the present time we will see that the planet is no longer in Sagittarius, but that in its slow eastward journey it has reached the group Capricornus. The five stars just below Jupiter form the very perfect Milk Dipper; it is to the right of this, between the stars D and E, that there is a most remarkable round, black area in which no stars are seen, this apparently being either a tunnel opaque cloud which lies in front of the more distant Milky Way stars and hides them from view.

The observer should not fail to examine the wonderful clusters of stars at the points marked H, nor the beautiful triple star at K. The two upper stars of the Dolphin, marked L in Figure 1, are also beautiful double stars in a small telescope. Just to the right of the star M is the remarkable Saturn Nebula, which resembles the planet Saturn with its rings, and which may be a system in process of formation; and the beautiful Andromeda Nebula at N should also not be overlooked. The first of these is a difficult object, however, unless the observer possesses a moderately large telescope.

There will be two occultations of unusual interest during the present month, though unfortunately neither can be observed to advantage except from a small part of our country. The first of these will occur September 20, when our moon will pass the Pleiades, that bright, dipper-shaped group of stars which through the great cloud of stars which fills this region, or, more probably, on this date will be seen rising in the northeast a few minutes after 8 o'clock in the evening. As seen from Washington, the eastern edge of the moon will reach the brightest star of the group and hide it from view at 8 hours 51 minutes, Eastern standard time, the star emerging at the west edge 47 minutes later. As the group will not have risen above the

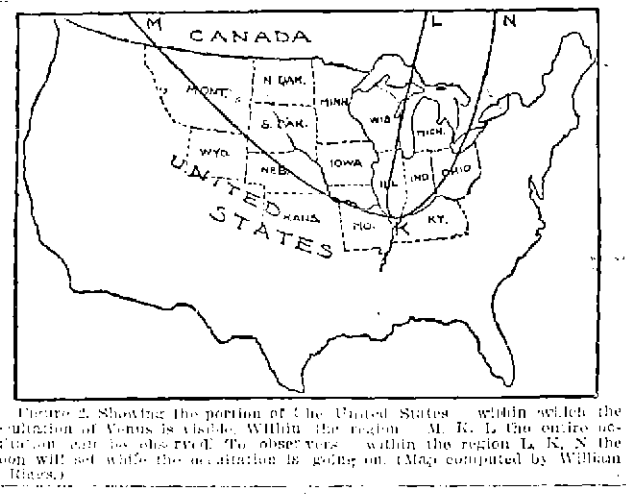

Figure 2. Showing the portion of the United States within which the occultation of Venus is visible. Within the region M. K. L the entire occultation can be observed. To observers within the region L. K. N the moon will set while the occultation is going on. (Map computed by William E. Rivers.)

and the bright planet Saturn will be just rising on the eastern horizon.

But the stars seen on the earlier date are no less interesting. Arcturus, a golden-yellow sun thousands of times brighter than our own sun, and the red Antares, that very old sun, have both drawn very near the ground in the west and will soon disappear. But far in the northeast there reappears the beautiful Capella, a sun almost exactly like our own except that it is 250 times as large, and low in the south we see the bluish Fomalhaut, or Royal

Star, a most beautiful object. worshiped in the temple of Dendera and in later centuries looked upon by astrologers as one of the most favorable of all the stars. The former sun will remain in our evening sky until next June, but the latter is so far south that it will again disappear toward the end of next November.

The Northern Cross, with its beautiful double star at A, Figure 1, is now almost directly overhead. Below this are the strange little group of the Dolphin, or Job's Coffin, and ground at this first time, the disappearance will be invisible; the emergence can, however, be observed, though the moon and the Pleiades will be very near the horizon at this time. Observers in the New England states can see the phenomenon to much better advantage, but the times of its occurrence will differ considerably at different places. They should, therefore, note the relative position of the moon and the stars as soon as the moon rises and estimate when the occultation will occur, remembering that our satellite moves eastward a distance equal to its own diameter in about one hour. A much more favorable situation of this group will occur on the afternoon of next December 7.

The second interesting occultation is the passage of our moon in front of the bright planet Venus. This will occur at about half past 3 o'clock in the afternoon of September 22, and will be visible only within the region shown in Figure 2. As this occultation will occur in the daytime it cannot be observed with the naked eye. The planet must first be located low in the afternoon sky, with the help of an ephemeris and the circles on the telescope, and the time required for the eastern edge of the moon to reach it must be estimated. It is very interesting to watch the edge of the moon moving steadily over the disc of a bright planet in this way. Even when watched with the naked eye it can be seen that the light of the planet is only gradually cut off. But when a star is occulted it disappears instantly, which is one of the most convincing proofs we have that there is no air or vapor of any kind on the surface of our satellite.

The full moon of September 15 is the so-called harvest moon. For many days after this date the nearly full moon will be observed to rise but slightly later on each successive evening, and its point of rising will move very rapidly northward along the eastern horizon, so that by the 23d of the month it will be found very far toward the north. At this time we will accordingly have a succession of more than a week of moonlight nights, an arrangement which an earlier people did not doubt was specially ordered to permit of their gathering their harvests.

Just before sunrise on the morning of September 15 the harvest full moon will pass into the shadow of the earth and a total eclipse of our satellite will occur. At this time, as viewed from the Eastern states, the moon will be low in the west and will set just as the eclipse is beginning. West of the Mississippi river, however, the moon will not set until it has become completely immersed in the shadow, while in the far western portions of our country the entrance into and the emergence from the shadow will both be visible.

The centre of them oon will reach the position A, Figure 3, and the eclipse begin September 15 at 5 hours 52.5 minutes A. M. (Eastern standard time); it will reach the position B and the eclipse become total at 7 hours 1 minute A. M.; it will reach the point C and begin to emerge from the shadow at 7 hours 46.1 minutes, and it will finally reach the position D and the eclipse will be over at 8 hours 35.2 minutes.

The succeeding full moon will move over the disc of the sun and cause a partial solar eclipse at about midnight September 20, but this eclipse will only be visible to observers within the small part of the earth's surface shown in Figure 4.

The bright planets Venus, Mars and Saturn are all morning stars, though September 20 the last-named will be just rising on the eastern horizon at 9 P. M., and so will be just entering the evening sky. As may be seen from Figure 5, the eastern part of the morning sky is now most beautiful, being filled with strikingly brilliant stars. Orion, Gemini, the two Dog Stars, the Hyades, the Pleiades and Capella, with the three bright planets in among these stars, form a picture that will well pay the extra effort which is required to witness it. Both Venus and Mars are now moving eastward; during the month the former will move from Gemini across Cancer into Leo, while the latter will move from Taurus into Gemini. Mars is daily drawing nearer the earth and coming into better position for observation.

Jupiter, the most conspicuous object in the evening sky, is moving very slowly eastward in the constellation Sagittarius. Though this planet is still well above the ground in the early evening, its rapid withdrawal from the evening sky has begun, and this is the last month of the year during which it can be observed to advantage.

Mercury remains too near the sun throughout the month to be well observed.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by any of the Liggett's stores under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

PLENTY OF PROOF

From People You Know—From Newport Citizens.

The greatest skeptic can hardly fail to be convinced in the face of evidence like this. It is impossible to produce better proof of merit than the testimony of residents of Newport, of people who can be seen at any time. Read the following case of it:

Mrs. Annie D. Hall, 15 Marsh St., Newport, R. I., says: "I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Wright & Hay's Drug Store for one of the family who complained for a long time of a nagging pain in his back and right hip. It so cheered him when he was working and at night made him very nervous. Mornings, when he got up he was tired, too. His back was so lame and painful that it was hard for him to straighten. Doan's Kidney Pills were just what he needed and they made a great improvement in every way. I have just as much faith in Doan's Kidney Pills now, as I did when I publicly recommended them some years ago. We keep them in the house and use them whenever we need a Kidney medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

A DELAYED BEQUEST.

Legacy of "Father" of Postal Money Order Service May Now be Accepted.

After more than 10 years' delay Congress is to be asked to find a way for the United States government to accept the sum of $2,000 in cash, which has been offered by a former official of the Postoffice Department, now dead, for the purpose of "improving the postal money order service." This sum was bequeathed to the United States by the late Dr. C. F. Macdonald, who died in 1902. He was known as "the father of the postal money order service," and was its first superintendent. In 1902 Thomas J. Fisher & Co. turned over the money to the United States, and the draft for it has been in the possession of the chief clerk of the third assistant postmaster general's office ever since.

The Postmaster General has written a letter to the Secretary of the Treasury, asking him to take such action with Congress as may be necessary or advisable in regard to the bequest.

The history of the case is told in the papers prepared by former Governor A. M. Dockery, third assistant postmaster general, who recites the legal quibbles that have arisen in the past 10 years as to whether the United States has the right to accept the money, and the complication of the case brought about by an application from the brother of Dr. Macdonald, who is an employe of the Boston postoffice, that he be given the money by the government if the United States does not intend to carry out the provisions of the bequest, an application endorsed by Senator Crane of Massachusetts.

The third assistant postmaster general says of the bequest, in part:

"Dr. Macdonald was the father of the money order system and its first superintendent. He founded the postal money order system in the United States and made it his life work, devoting to its success all his time and energy. Childless, he watched the growth of this creation of his inventive mind until it came to be the greatest and most successful system of its kind in the world, and it seems natural enough that his pride in that success assumed the attitude of a parent toward a favorite child.

"Viewed in this light the bequest by which he endeavored to insure continued improvement of the service at a time when his far-seeing mind could no longer direct the policies and safeguard the interests of the system is easily understood, and seems to impose on the department as a trust the duty of making all reasonable efforts to fulfil his wishes. However, there are difficulties to be overcome before the money can be expended in the manner directed by the will, as it must be formally accepted and specifically appropriated to the purpose by Congress.

"As to the main point at issue there is no divergence of opinion between the law officers consulted; they unite in pronouncing the bequest valid and the title of the United States perfect. Therefore, to enable this department to realize the testator's wish and thus honor his memory by efforts to advance the interests of the service, I suggest that the whole matter be again referred to Congress with a recommendation that its formal sanction be given to acceptance of the gift, and that he amount of the bequest be specifically set aside by appropriation to be expended under the authority and direction of a commission of three persons to be appointed by the Postmaster General and to serve without compensation."

LOBSTERS AND FISH SCARCE.

All the lobster boats are in, because of the weather and heavy seas outside. There is a big demand for lobsters and there are lobsters, but the fishermen cannot go to pull their pots. One man says he is losing $40 every day he is compelled to lay off. Lobsters are worth money and people seem to have the money to pay for them. Fish are also scarce, but the price is not so high. Fish is a necessity, not a luxury, like lobsters. Thursday night Captain Monson arrived in the Alice with eight barrels of good mackerel, and as not a single buyer was on the dock the local markets took them.

The mackerel boats and the lobster boats were all about out, menhaden having run short, but today Captain Cottrell in the Winona brought in 150 barrels of pogies and every one baited up. What they need now is good weather.

NAVAL ORDERS AND MOVEMENTS.

The Navy Department announces the following orders to officers:

Lieutenant Commander Z. H. Madison, detached from the Florida and ordered to the Navy Department.

Lieutenant D. P. Wickersham, detached from the Maine and ordered to the Paducah as executive officer and navigator.

Lieutenant (Junior grade) W. O. Wallace, ordered to the Naval Academy.

Acting Assistant Surgeon J. E. Heathey, detached from the naval recruiting station, Kansas City, and ordered home and to wait orders.

Acting Assistant Surgeon M. E. Rose, detached from the navy yard, Philadelphia, and ordered to the naval recruiting station, Kansas City.

The following movements of naval vessels are reported:

Arrived—Machias at Bermuda, Nashville at Puerto Cortez, Honduras.

Sailed—Ozark, C-1, C-2, C-3, C-4 and C-5 from Guantanamo for Guancanayabo bay; Nanshan, from San Francisco for San Diego; Montana, from Portsmouth, N. H., for Philadelphia; Glacier, from San Francisco for Mare Island.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5, Wall Street—The market opened with Amalgamated Copper 76⅞, American Locomotive 35, American Smelting 67½, Anaconda 38⅝, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe 94½, Baltimore & Ohio 96⅝, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Canadian Pacific 221, Great Northern Preferred 126, Missouri Pacific, New York Central 95⅝, Northern Pacific 111, Reading 159¼, Southern Pacific 90⅝, Union Pacific 149⅝, United States Steel 62⅝, Western Union 67.

10:45—A turn in the stock market came with the opening of business today, after several days of declining price. The leaders were in keen demand and prices rose. Higher quotations for American stocks in London gave the first impulse upwards and the scarcity of stocks around last night's closing figures caused shorts to cover. The further advance in Copper metal strengthened the copper group. Southern Pacific opened with a block of 1500 shares at an advance of a point. Union Pacific, St. Paul, Reading and Amalgamated also gained a point and Lackawanna two. Changes elsewhere were smaller, but gains were general. New Haven added a fraction to its advance of yesterday. Pittsburgh Coal preferred, the weak feature of the list, receded 1½.

Noon—The ease with which stocks advanced on a comparatively small amount of business indicated that the week's decline had been largely the result of professional selling and that little real stock had been sold. The short interest apparently had been increased by the recent selling to a point which made the bear position untenable. Announcement that the subscriptions to the Southern Pacific stock exceeded the first estimate of 50 per cent made by the underwriters, amounting to more than 54 per cent, gave strength to the Harriman shares, the effect on which was felt through the list. Speculative sentiment became bullish for the moment and prices were pushed up steadily until many important stocks had risen a point or more. Bonds were firm. Money on call firm, at 3 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 5½ @ 6 per cent. Exchanges, balances.

AT THE KINGSTON FAIR.

Manifold Displays and Varying Programs on the Different Days.

From every indication this year's fair at West Kingston will surpass any previously held in this state. The management has contrived to make it an occurrence of interest to people, not only in the south county, but throughout Rhode Island, eastern Connecticut and southern Massachusetts.

The South County fair has all the well known features which New Englanders everywhere have learned to love. The executive committee report an increase in the number and quality of exhibits in nearly every department. This is owing partly to the greatly increased amount of premiums as prizes, as well as to the steadily advancing interest of farmers and others.

In the manifold displays of fruits and vegetables, which occupy a big section of the exhibition hall each year, every fruit and vegetable possible to grow in this climate is represented. The live stock entered for exhibition will also prove a valuable instructive feature in demonstrating the ability of Rhode Islanders as cattle raisers. The vicinity of the stalls and pens is always one of the very popular parts of the grounds.

The free vaudeville show, which in past years have been a pleasing feature of the fair, will be again in evidence this year. Lovers of racing will find pleasure in the schedule. The entries show a larger number of fast horses than any previous year and it is expected that heats will be run every day.

The first day will be devoted entirely to showing the exhibitions, agricultural, live stock, poultry, household and dairy products, fruits and vegetables, flowers and plants, textiles, art, labor-saving invention, etc.

The second day will be called Grange day. Appropriate exercises will be held in Exhibition hall and speakers of national note will be present to instruct and entertain the patrons.

Governor's day will be made notable as the occasion of the annual address, and remarks by His Excellency, Governor Pothier.

On the last day the fair will be thrown open to the children, all under 15 years of age being admitted free. Races and sports dear to the hearts of the youngsters will be in order, the management leaving no stone unturned to make this day one long to be remembered by the young folks of Rhode Island.

SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean gave a luncheon at "Black Point Farm" and Mr. Haniel von Haimhausen a luncheon at the German embassy Thursday. Countess Annie Leary gave an afternoon reception, with dancing at "Park Gate".

Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer gave a dinner at "Honeysuckle Lodge" in the evening in honor of Commander and Mrs. Carlyon Bellairs of England, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Brown of Baltimore and Miss Janet Fish. Mrs. George Henry Warren entertained at dinner at "Seafields", and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., at her cottage on Rhode Island avenue.

Mrs. Richard T. Wilson will give a domino party at "Villarosa", the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Rollins Morse, this evening, for Miss Lois Cassatt, daughter of Mrs. Alexander J. Cassatt, and Miss Rose E. Dolan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan, debutantes of the present season. The dance will be preceded by dinners given by Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan, Mrs. Forsyth Wickes, Mrs. Paul A. Andrews and Mrs. Elisha Dyer.

HARVARD TENNIS MEN WORST PRINCETON.

In the intercollegiate lawn tennis championship tournament at Haverford, Pa., Thursday the Harvard players put all the Princeton men out of the running in the singles. R. Norris Williams, 2d, Harvard, a member of the Davis Cup team and runner-up to Maurice E. McLoughlin in the national championship last week, easily defeated in straight sets G. M. Church of Princeton. W. M. Washburn, Harvard, defeated A. M. Kidder, Princeton, and J. J. Armstrong, Harvard, beat R. C. Low, Princeton.

The winning pairs in the doubles were R. N. Williams and E. H. Whitney, Harvard; W. M. Washburn and J. J. Armstrong, Harvard, and G. M. Church and W. Kuhn, Princeton.

AMONG THE STURTEVANT PAINTINGS.

In the collection of about 50 paintings now on exhibit at the Art Association Studio by Misses Helena and Louisa C. Sturtevant are two interiors of the Berkeley Memorial Chapel and one exterior, showing two choir boys in the chancel, Messrs. Russell Morgan Peckham and Lloyd Peckham of Middletown. The latter is one of the largest canvases shown and the most pretentious. About 20 of the studies cover scenes on Paradise avenue and the vicinity of Second Beach. A number were taken at "Gray Crag Park", a portion of the Italian garden, in oil, and two decorative pastels of fruit.

WHO WILL HAVE THE COMMISSION?

Said to be the Whole Question in the Automobile Deadlock.

Aldermen Albro and Kirby Again Break Quorum and No Further Vote Taken.

It may be that Chief Kirwin, after the trial of the automobile pumps in New York Wednesday, when the La France showed its superiority and the Pope-Hartford was not even mentioned, sent word that it was now or never. It may be from some other cause, but anyhow, with other business to be transacted, and despite the understanding that another attempt would not be made to buy an automobile chemical in the absence of the mayor, the Board of Aldermen at its meeting Thursday evening went through the same farce enacted Tuesday night, with the same result so far as the buying was concerned. It did not go through the infantile procedure of questioning a quorum. It has learned that a quorum is four members.

Incidentally, provoked by the fact that the Pope-Hartford men again tried to force matters, Alderman Albro gave away the combination of the whole trouble over fire apparatus, when he said that Chief Kirwin had said any of the apparatus was good enough for Newport's needs, but "who would you rather see get the commission?" This seems to be the whole thing, but it had not been given out in public, and officially, before. As the game goes on the public is gradually having some light thrown on the fire apparatus situation. More light can be thrown, and may be.

All the members were present except the mayor, and things looked like smooth sailing at the start.

The regular pay rolls were approved for the following amounts: Streets and highways, $1,526.35; police, $1,146.57; fire department, $589.24; city officers $269.27; firemen in theatres, $18.

The monthly salaries for the public schools, $1,976.81, and the monthly bills of the school department, which were not in the monthly audit, and amounted to $7,175.96, were also ordered paid.

There was a bill for $50 for the use of Hibernian hall for the special election last June, and a bill of J. K. Sullivan for $217.50 for work on the sewer disposal plant at the beach, which were also ordered paid.

A report was received from the street commissioner in regard to the petition of E. Kempenaar for a sewer connection on the Kay Street boulevard, in which the street commissioner said the required sewer could be laid from the corner of the boulevard and Eustis avenue at a cost of $500, and that the cost would come out of the Second Ward sewerage account, as it would form part of that system. The street commissioner was authorized to put in the sewer.

Gasoline licenses were issued to C. F. Barker, J. H. F. Smith and Harry Aaron.

A resolution was presented, directing the city treasurer to turn over to the committee on Perry Day celebration the $1,000 appropriated by the Representative Council for the observance of the day. Alderman Hughes thought this resolution should not pass until the board had some information as to the plans for the observance. He said that officially he knew nothing about any plans for the day. Nothing had been said in the board about what it is proposed to do. He had seen some things in the papers, but he thought the board, before it authorized the payment of the money, should be officially informed what it is proposed to do. Alderman Leddy said the money had been appropriated for this purpose. Alderman Hughes said it had, but the board is supposed to know what it is to be used for, just as it is supposed to know what other money is to be used for before it authorizes payment.

Alderman Albro said there were two aldermen and the mayor on the committee and it is the usual custom to pay the money to the chairman, in this case the mayor, so that he might have it ready to meet the bills and expenses. He did not see any variation from the usual custom in this. Alderman Kelly, also of the committee, said the plans are not yet complete and the committee could not give the board a full program. Finally the resolution was adopted, Alderman Hughes voting no.

There seemed to be no further business. Mr. F. F. Nolan was present, but Alderman Albro had asked him if he had any business and, understanding he had none, moved to adjourn.

Alderman Hughes said before adjournment the board ought to take up the matter of fire apparatus. Alderman Albro said he would be obliged to take the same stand as before, but Alderman Leddy suggested that he wait and see how things would turn out. Mr. Albro said he did not need to wait; he could tell them that there would be three votes for the Pope-Hartford machine. The only thing he could do to prevent this was to walk out, and he would do so.

Alderman Kirby said it seemed to him improper to take up this matter at this meeting. In view of the fact that the board is in a deadlock on the matter of fire apparatus, he thought some one of the solid three for the Pope-Hartford should suggest some other apparatus and he would be glad to vote for it. Any one of the five standard makes for which the board had bids would receive his vote, but not the Pope-Hartford. The three opposed to the Pope-Hartford are not in favor of any special make of apparatus, but would be glad to vote for any one of the five. Seagrave, Knox, La France, Webb or Ahrens-Fox. He had at the start a favorite machine, but he soon saw that this would not be selected and then made up his mind to vote for any standard make of machine built by a regular fire apparatus maker.

Alderman Leddy did not see why the other side did not come over to the Pope-Hartford. He had asked Chief Kirwin what make he preferred and the chief had told him the Pope-Hartford. He believed the chief knew better than the members of the Board of Aldermen what apparatus should be bought. If there was a steam roller to be bought, the street commissioner would be consulted.

Mr. Kirby could not agree that on automobile fire apparatus the chief's

THE HYDRO-AEROPLANE CAMP AT KING PARK.

Here Captain Willoughby has established his working base and hopes to be joined by others. It is an advantageous position for the basing of flying boats, because of the well protected beach. From the public's viewpoint it is also a good place, because it is on one of the city's popular drives and those passing have one more interesting feature to gaze upon. There is plenty of room for crowds to gather when flights are anticipated.

SHOWN BY MRS. CHADWICK.

Life Saving Drill Seen in Operation by New York Fire Chiefs and Officials.

Ease With Which a Man May be Carried Demonstrated With Great Success.

Mrs. Chadwick, wife of Rear Admiral French E. Chadwick, U. S. N. (retired), of this city, exhibited her life-saving device, which was last summer shown in Germany before the Kaiser and leading officials, at fire headquarters in New York Thursday. The apparatus, a combination of stretcher and carrier was shown before a number of fire chiefs, other officers of department and members of the department school.

Mrs. Charwick explained that her invention is a carrier to be used as an auxiliary to the regular stretcher and produced a canvas roll a few inches long and two suspender-like arrangements fastened to belts. She then showed two firemen how to adjust the belts and straps, one wearing a strap over his right shoulder, the other over his left. The piece of canvas about five feet long was rolled upon the floor.

"Twenty-five," called Chief Larkin to a fireman, come here and we'll try this on you." Twenty-five meekly lay down, giving a very good imitation of a man overcome by heat. He allowed himself to be rolled on to the canvas which was fastened by iron hoops to the harness worn by the two firemen, so that it formed a basket in which the man sat upright. He was then carried about the yard and down a flight of narrow stairs."

"The advantage of my invention, said Mrs. Chadwick, "is that it requires only two men to use it, and the weight comes all on their shoulders."

Chief Larkin suggested trying the carrier in coming down a ladder, and in a moment a spectacular sight was enjoyed by the crowd below the windows of the headquarters. From a high window the two firemen crawled out upon the sealing ladders, the canvas basket hanging between them, and into it a scared-looking "Twenty-five" was poked. While his carriers made the descent he shut his eyes, but soon found the basket supported him and Mrs. Chadwick's claims, too. He was brought down safely. "It's real comfortable," he declared, as they helped him out. "I could sit in it all day."

The men who had carried the stretcher said the device is easier to carry than the "body wrap," the only thing similar now in use, which requires at least four men to carry it.

Mrs. Chadwick said: "I have demonstrated the carrier in Germany, and on the United States relief ship Solace. The German government has offered me 15,000 marks for it, and all who have seen it appreciate the fact that it weighs only six pounds, is easily adjusted, hangs from the shoulders, can be carried down narrow winding stairs with ease, and leaves the carriers with one free arm. "While they steady the basket by each man putting one arm on the other man's shoulder in the free hand each fireman can carry his axe and break down a partition if necessary. Poles may be run through the two sides of the canvas thus making a regular stretcher, and in the pocket at the top, Red Cross supplies may be carried."

Chief Larkin expressed himself as pleased with the invention and advised Mrs. Chadwick to see Commissioner Johnson in regard to it.

UNIFORMED ODD FELLOWS.

Newport Canton, Patriarchs Militant, Instituted and Officers Elected.

Newport Canton, No. 3, Patriarchs Militant, the uniformed branch of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, was instituted at Odd Fellows' hall Thursday evening, with 24 charter members. These were initiated and the canton instituted by Major General Zenas W. Lewis, department of Massachusetts and Rhode Island; Assistant Adjutant General J. Frank Freeman, Lieutenant Colonel William H. Miner of the quartermaster's department and Ensign Eben A. Baker. The following officers were elected and installed:

Captain—Allen C. Griffith.
Lieutenant—Donald E. Spears.
Ensign—Eben Raynor.
Clerk—Lincoln Hammett.
Accountant—George S. Stoddard.

The following, members of Rhode Island and Excelsior lodges of Odd Fellows, signed the petition for the institution of the new branch and were initiated: Allen C. Griffith, Donald E. Spears, Eben Raynor, Lincoln Hammett, George S. Stoddard, J. Roswell Chace, Joseph B. Pike, Ernest Goudreau, Thomas Stanhope, Lloyd Manuel, Charles Saal, F. Laudholm, Samuel W. Millington, Benjamin Williams, John W. Oxx, Albert Almy, Alexander Stewart, Chester J. Thompson, Parker L. Thurston, Oscar Schultz, William H. Sisson, Robert Smith, Antonio Ferretti, C. S. Church.

IN THE NATIVE TONGUE.

Russian Music to be Rendered by Russian Artists at Balalaika Concert.

Russian music which today enjoys great vogue, with few exceptions has never been sung in America by representative Russian artists in their native tongue. Russian music has a conspicuous place on the program of every orchestra, Russian singers occupy positions of honor in the great American opera houses, where they are singing in French and Italian, but seldom is the public at large offered the opportunity to hear great masterpieces of Russian composers sung in the tongue as originally written.

Next Wednesday evening at the Casino a Russian music festival will be given, and will include a program of Russian orchestral and vocal music which promises to be one of the best offerings given in Newport this season.

Among those who will participate in the elaborate program arranged, are Mlle. Hortense Drujons, dramatic soprano, Alexander Agrinoff, baritone, Mme. Maria Winetsky, contralto, and Lawrence Rovenger, piano virtuoso. In addition to these artists the famous Russian balalaika orchestra will give a varied program which will include such numbers as the "Volga Boatman song", "Butterfly Waltz" and folk song of Russia. Alexander Kiriloff, the balalaika soloist, will render selections entitled "Caprice" and "Night".

JAPANESE MUSICAL COMEDY

Actors from the "Isle of Spice" Company Making a Hit at the Colonial.

The "Maid of Nicobar", a Japanese musical comedy taken from the "Isle of Spice" and "King Dodo is the big head-line attraction at the Colonial and proved a decided hit Thursday. Harry Watson was the original comedian with the "Isle of Spice" company, and his work in this little operetta is a revelation. His witticisms are bright, his make-up as King Bumpy ludicrous and his "monkey shines" funny. The prima donna, Dorothy Homer, another star from the same company, is pretty, vivacious and the possessor of a well trained lyric soprano voice, which she uses with charming effect. W. E. DuBard, who plays opposite to Miss Homer, is another star from the "Isle of Spice" company. He also possesses a well trained voice, which is heard to good advantage in his numbers with Miss Homer. The chorus selection is composed of six clever singing and dancing girls, whose work adds materially to the success of the act. Many pleasing numbers are introduced by the principals, the most popular of which are "The Jap of Nicobar", "The Broadway Glide" and "I love you every hour."

Other acts appearing on the bill are Field Barnes, a xylophone artist of exceptional ability, and James Burns, whose work on the tight and slack wire is above the average in this dangerous line of entertaining. The picture program presents a list of the latest films, including the Pathe Weekly No. 46, "The Ghost of Granleigh", "Among Club Fellows" and "Edwin's Badge of Honor", two Biograph comedies, and "A Proposal from the Don", the second in the series of "Who will marry Mary".

FOR BABY M'LEAN.

Cooke's Colored Orchestra Entertains Child and Guests With Songs.

Thursday evening Karl B. Cooke's colored society orchestra entertained "Baby" Edward McLean, son of Mr. Edward B. McLean, at "Black Point Farm." The little fellow has been in poor health and it was thought the entertainment would cheer him up. His visitors were highly successful in their efforts and delighted the boy, as well as the guests. The program consisted of negro songs in dialect and popular songs. The baby listened with wonder and pleasure to the strain of "Dixie" and was in high glee throughout the entertainment.

The orchestra also pleased others besides the little host of the occasion, for a number of guests enjoyed the interesting program which was offered. Among those present were the Russian ambassador and Madame Bakhmeteff. Dinner was served in courses on the piazzas.

FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING.

No cases were tried in the district court this morning, and the court adjourned early. The case of State vs. David M. Rubin was up, as it had been continued to this date from some time back. The charge was reckless driving, which resulted in the disembowelling of a valuable horse owned by Ernst Voigt and injuries to Mr. Voigt's daughter. The defendant had previously pleaded not guilty, but today put in a plea of nolo contendere. Attorney Max Levy and a lawyer from Taunton put in pleas for the defendant, but Judge Franklin found him guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

Disposition was made of the case of State vs. Richard Sanders of Fort Greble, upon the payment of costs.

Judge Franklin leaves today or tomorrow for his vacation of two weeks, and during that time all matters relating to the court will be decided by Clerk Kelley. The session this morning was again held in the superior court room.

RELAY AND BEANBAG.

Most Exciting Races for the Boys and the Girls Respectively.

Winners in the Series of Games and Sports by the Children of the Playgrounds.

The inter-playground meet, held Thursday afternoon at Morton park, was successful in every way. There were something over 300 children from the different grounds throughout the city, and there probably would have been many more if the skies had not looked so threatening. The spectators were interested in watching the various games and races, which were conducted in systematic and quiet manner by Supervisor Chase and his assistants. There were three classes for both boys and girls, and separate races were run off in each class. Class A was composed of the older boys and girls, B was the intermediate class and C was for the younger children. Each of these classes was under the supervision of one or more officials, who were principally the instructors at the playgrounds. At the end of each contest ribbon badges were awarded to those who finished in the first three places.

The most exciting race of the afternoon for the boys was the relay, which was the only inter-playground event, as all the others were open. For the girls the beanbag race seemed to arouse the greatest amount of excitement. Clara Murphy and Edith Brice attracted notice by their good work in the races, while Bonin and A. Edes were conspicuous for their consistent winnings. The latter far outclassed all his opponents in running, and it looks now as if he had the right stuff to make a good runner. The events resulted as follows.

Boys—Class A.

60-yard dash—Bonin, Norbury, Oxx.

100-yard dash—F. Bencivenga, Bonin, Oxx.

Sack race—Bonin, Libby, Oxx.

Three-legged race—Bonin and Norbury, Bencivenga brothers, Libby and Integlia.

Boys—Class B.

60-yard dash—A. Edes, James, Prasso.

100-yard dash—A. Edes, Prasso, James.

Sack race—A. Edes, Smith, Dent.

Three-legged race—A. Edes and Braley, Smith and J. Cottrell, A. Mitchell and H. Edward.

Boys—Class C.

60-yard dash—Conway, Dannin, D. Edes.

100-yard dash—D. Edes, Conway, Dannin.

Sack race—D. Edes, Dannin, Hall.

Three-legged race—Dannin and Pinto, Hall and Cassim, Simpson and Connolly.

Relay—Basin (Prasso, Norbury, Bonin, F. Bencivenga); Cranston (A. Edes, Braley, Greenland, Oxx); Lenthal (Hall, A. Sullivan, Franco, Cassim).

Girls—Class A.

The boys completed their events much sooner than the girls, and spent the time in playing indoor base ball until the two special cars arrived to take the children away from the park. Four teams were formed.

Those who assisted Supervisor Chase in conducting the meet were Misses Mary J. Leddy, Katherine E. Harrington, Frances E. Shea, Mary E. Flynn, Almira Coffin, Marion Williams and Elsie K. Donovan, all in charge of playgrounds, who took charge of the girls; Stanley A. Ward, Charles Underwood, Tom Wyllie, F. Morton Lee, instructors at the playgrounds, William Underwood, John Halpin, William Brown, Vito Pinto and Edward Hogan.
